IF HE'S HAPPY ON THE WAY.

(By Frank L. Stanton.)
What matter for the money
You miss from day to day?
Life is ever sunny
And we're "happy on the way."

There's mighty little trouble
And skies are seldom gray,
Single file or double
If we're happy on the way!

THE LAW IN MEXICO

UNMISTAKABLY, Gen. Pablo Gonzales was guilty of having been the Carranza candidate for president of Mexico, and of being caught. This, in a Mexico running true to form, should have been enough to cause his death in a "regrettable attempt to escape from an armed escort."

But Gonzales is alive! Tried by court-martial on the charge of having led in Nuevo Leon a brief and unsuccessful "rebellion" against the Obregon government, he was found guilty; but the court at the same time seems to have declared its lack of jurisdiction. At best, the effect of this in the logic of the old days should have been to set the general free, but subject to rearrest and trial before some tribunal more confident of its powers.

Apparently neither retrial nor death by "ley de fuga" awaits the unfortunate candidate. War Minister Gen. Calles instructs the local chief of military operations that "the government considers itself sufficiently strong" in public opinion not to fear "that Gonzales will continue to be a peril" to its stability. He is to be set "absolutely at liberty."

If Gen. Gonzales does finally pass what has hitherto been in Mexico the dead-line of getting caught in an unsuccessful uprising, that fact should indicate a striking advance in government methods. It should show that Gen. Obregon was perhaps not acting an emotion for effect upon an outside world when he angrily denounced the killing of Carranza. With the decision of the Nuevo Leon court martial, it might even mean that Mexico is beginning to discover the use of Law.—New York World.

A REFERENDUM IS A REFERENDUM

SOME ill-advised partisans make the argument that even should Governor Cox be elected as president, a two-thirds majority might be hard to command in support of the peace treaty in the senate.

Not at all. It is accepted on both sides that the presidential election is a referendum on the peace treaty. The Chicago platform hails it as such and so do the democrats. Senator Harding has officially announced his readiness to accept the election as a referendum. Governor Cox does likewise.

Accordingly there is every reason to expect that the verdict whatever it may be will be respected. There can be no hope for the peace treaty nor for the League of Nations if Harding is elected. Even the staunchest supporter of the league will admit this. By the same token the irreconcilables cannot expect to have their way if Cox is elected. The election of Cox will be notice from the American people that they desire America to enter the league. There will be but one honorable course open to the senate in case the referendum is favorable to the treaty. That will consist in ratification of the treaty with such clarifying reservations as may be deemed wise.

To claim that regardless of the election's outcome the senate will refuse to sign is to claim that the United States senate will try to defy the will of the people as given in what both sides accept to as a "solemn referendum." Such a claim is ill founded because the senators are responsible to the people and such men usually heed the writing on the wall when they see it.

The appointment of W. R. Taylor as his brother's successor in the sheriff's office will have general approval. The office is not an easy one to fill and it is too much to expect another Till Taylor very soon. Such men are rare. The new sheriff will have the good wishes of the people who wish most of all just now for the capture of the men who broke jail Sunday and in their break killed the most popular official in Eastern Oregon.

Saturday there was too much wind off Sandy Hook and on Monday there was not enough breeze to make a race. The suspense must be hard on those most concerned.

But the wheat price is still pretty good, despite that drop.

It has been a tragic year for Pendleton.

INDIAN RECLAMATION RESERVATION CROPS

WORTH $41,000,000
YAKIMA, July 27.—Conservative estimates by I. M. Holt, supervising engineer of the Indian reclamation service price the value of the reclamation crops this year at $11,000,000. This is based on the census taken of the crops growing on 72,453 acres. It does not include figures on return from 18,900 acres under cultivation on Satus, Toppensish and Simcoe creeks, which Holt thinks will yield an additional $1,125,000. Of the total estimated crop value, Indians will get $1,250,000 in rental money for the lands leased to white men.

The reclamation alfalfa crop is valued at $3,044,000, based on a yield of four tons to the acre at $25 a ton. The fruit estimate is one-half of last year's, or $700,000 at $250 an acre. Wheat at a low average of 25 bushels to the acre at $2.20 a bushel will return $122,250 to growers. Potatoes are due to enrich reservation farmers by $972,000, figuring 3000 acres at $30 a ton, for a nine-ton per acre yield. Only half a beet crop is expected, the census showing a drop this year to 1442.
