MARJORIE WAXES POETIC OVER DAPPER FLAPPER

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Consider the flapper. Her clothes must be dapper and just in the vogue like her Ma's. Her dress must be slinky—if not, 'twill be dinky, and kid gloves must cover her paws. Her gown must be satin; it's fit must not fatten. If figured with roses, 'tis well. A chaille or wooten, a serge ('twill take button), will make her a dapper most swell. Sateen with a "figer" is also a winner. We've seen 'em all covered with fruit. Some merchants choose pears—blue "violets" or roses, and call the ensemble quite cute.
Leather belts are tres nifty, and if they get shifty you sew 'em down with some yarn. Even flowers made of leather resembling a tether make the sweep of her fashion the mark. The lids for the flappers don't come with soap wrappers. A bricklayer's wages might do. They make 'em of pleatings and even take sheetings. If they're nobby any old thing will do. Most of them have long tails to tickle the gales, and black is considered quite smart. If you see that her shoes is chestrnut in hue, your daughter of fashion's a part. How much will it rock you? Don't let "free verse" shock you! They tell me three hundred will do it.
So if you have many 'tis many a penny you'll spend in the shops while you rue it. And if you believe in forswearing reprieve until the final is written, there are trinkets galore on Gotham's wide shore for the man who with flapper is smitten. There are lip sticks and cases to fit any faces, canes and umbrellas and bags. There are undies and sundries from Orient countries, to peek at your jeans and then grab.
