

People Here and There

"He can talk more on any subject than any man in Oregon and do it in less time." Such is the reputation Jerry Schooling, old-time sheep man, proudly bears. Mr. Schooling, who knows all the pioneer residents of Pendleton, stopped off here today while a carload of purebred Rambouillet sheep he is taking to Salt Lake City were turned into corral for their rest. He comes from the Hay Creek ranch of the Baldista Sheep Co., in Jefferson county, over which C. C. Berkeley, brother of Norborne Berkeley, of this city, is manager. Mr. Schooling is taking the prize sheep to the ram sale at Salt Lake, an annual event.

City Attorney James A. Fee returned home last evening from a 10 days' trip to Berkeley, Cal., whither he went to visit his family. He left upon receiving word that Mrs. Fee was ill but he found her in good health when he arrived. The judge enjoyed a trip through the cities about that region before returning home.

Courses of Study Coming.
Elementary courses of study for the state schools will be sent to county superintendents from the Portland office on August 25, the local headquarters was notified today. As soon as they reach County Superintendent Green he will forward copies to the various districts.

Must Use Old Registers.
School districts throughout the state are to be asked to use their old teachers registers this year owing to the inability of the state to furnish new ones. The cost has risen so much on these articles that not until the legislature appropriates more money will they be available. Meanwhile the economy will have to be practiced.

Three In Family Contribute
The total in the T. H. Taylor memorial Association fund this morning was reported at headquarters at $5942. This includes only the lists and cash turned over to the office here and of this amount Pendleton and Athens have raised virtually all.

In publishing the lists of donors three subscriptions of $50 each were inadvertently omitted. M. L. Watts, of Athens, was on the list for that amount and Anton Vey Sr., and Mary M. Vey, of Pendleton, each gave $50. Anton Vey Jr. was the third member of the Vey family to subscribe $50 to the memorial fund.

Postlanders are Giving
James H. Sturges, member of the committee of five, this morning received a letter from E. B. Wood, chief special agent for the O. W. R. & N. Co., at Portland, informing him that a subscription of $100 had been turned over to him by Phil Metchan, Jr. Mr. Wood is a member of the Portland committee and is working with a will as he was one of the best of Sheriff Taylor's friends.

Besides having a headquarters in the Hartman Abstract Co. office and lists in many stores of the city, the committee will receive subscriptions at any of the local banks or at the offices of any member of the committee. J. R. Raley, John Vaughan, Henry Collins and J. E. Sturges will receive subscriptions at their places of business and turn them over to headquarters.

Gift Comes From Jail
Ben Jarrell, who has served time here for moonshining, is reported in the Portland press as having sent $5 to the fund with which to erect the memorial.

"I notice in the papers that you are collecting funds for the T. H. Taylor memorial. Enclosed you will find $5—the best I can do. I cannot express how sorry I was to hear of his tragic end. It is a shame that a brave, good man like T. H. Taylor should be shot from behind by a dirty cur."

The note was folded about a $5 bill which came yesterday to Sheriff T. M. Hurburt, of Multnomah county from Jarrell, who is now in the county jail.

WHEAT MARKET

Oats—Trade was light and largely of a local character prices following the action of corn. Spot premiums in the local market were unchanged. Some export inquiries were reported and 200,000 bushels claimed to have been worked. The foreign demand must show concrete evidence of improvement in order to offset the pressure of the new crop on the market.

Rye—Local selling was inspired by the weakness in wheat and the fact that some liberal export sales were reported had no influence on the market. Cash rye was firm with sales of No. 2 on track at $2.03 per bushel.
