

People Here and There

The face of Forrest Cornish, a new resident in this city, may look familiar to movie fans, for he is the man who appeared as the colonel in "The Birth of a Nation." He has taken other prominent parts in the silent drama and has in his possession hundreds of autographed photos of screen stars who are his friends. For several years he managed locations for Douglas Fairbanks, and has been thus employed by other actors and actresses.

H. E. Rice, who operates a confectionery store at Hall's, is in the city today. He is accompanied by Rodolph Lainger, a farmer of that community.

Excessive rainfall and some snow have to some extent hindered the Weston potato harvest, says E. M. Smith, cashier of the Weston bank who was a Pendleton visitor yesterday. Mr. Smith says that the greater part of the gold-digging has not yet been done.

Ted Van Deusen, who recently entered Stanford, is representing his dormitory in the annual tennis tournament at the college. Young Van Deusen is a freshman.

Henry Hill is here from La Grande today on business. Mr. Hill is a real estate man in the Union county seat and is a brother of Dr. D. B. Hill and James Hill, of Pendleton.

Elmer Storie, Walla Walla manager of Sturgis & Storie, implement dealers, is in Pendleton today on business. Besides coaching the Whitman line as an assistant to Coach Nig Borleske, Mr. Storie has a new infant in the family that receives considerable attention from him.

Cedric Nesbitt, of Goldendale, Wash., spent part of today in the city waiting for train connections to get him to the north side of the Columbia river. He has been employed in a lumber camp in Union county all summer and will return to the University of Washington soon to finish his course in forestry.

DECEMBER WHEAT

(From Overbeck & Cooke Co.)
CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Wheat—Covering by shorts caused an advance early in the day but influential buying power failed to appear and the market declined rapidly on a small and scattered volume of selling. The item of news contributing to the bearish feeling at the close was the statement of Secretary Houston to a group of bankers, in which he spoke strongly of the inadvisability of extending credits which might prevent commodity prices from declining. The report that Germany had exhausted its credit with Holland and would be out of the market for two months or more also had an adverse effect on the market here. The news emanating from export circles was of a decidedly bullish character, but failed as a price making factor. Sales to France and Belgium yesterday and over night were said to total 2,000,000 bushels and a substantial quantity was understood to have been worked over night. The paramount question at the moment is whether or not the tendency to deflate in other directions can counteract the ordinary law of supply and demand.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The market was firm throughout the session, and closed a shade higher. Rice's speech was favorably construed and the news with regard to the British miners strike somewhat more reassuring. It looks as though the difficulties on the other side would adjust themselves much sooner than anticipated a few days ago. There was some scattered buying of steel shares in anticipation of a favorable forecast as to the outlook by Judge Barr on Friday. The strength of the market is very impressive and we think that ere long a bull market will be inaugurated.
