Barbara Hampton was one girl in a million—and she dared. Edythe Sterling, beautiful motion picture actress, who is famous for her appearances in Western pictures, portrays the role of Barbara Hampton in "The Girl Who Dared," a unique Western photoplay which came to the Pastime theatre yesterday for two days' showing.

Barbara is a girl who accepted the post of sheriff in a wild Western community at a time when no man could be found for the post capable of running down the band of cattle-rustlers who were terrorizing the country. Barbara dared—and her accomplishments, as viewed at the Pastime theatre yesterday, make five of the most fascinating reels of red-blooded adventure viewed here in some time.

IDEAL FOR THEME OF "HAIRPINS" CAUGHT AT A DINNER PARTY

A dinner party at a fashionable hotel gave C. Gardner Sullivan the ideal for the theme and plot of "Hairpins," the latest Paramount-Artcraft photoplay starring Enid Bennett, which will be shown at the Alta theatre today.

The dinner, at which Mr. Sullivan was a guest, was being served by waitresses. During the progress of the meal a hairpin dropped from the head of one of the young women onto the table. She castly picked it up, muttered an apology and replaced it in her hair.

But Mr. Sullivan had his idea. He began to wonder what sort of wife this woman would make to some man. He wondered if he, as the husband of a woman so careless and untidy, would be contented. For several days he pondered. And then he set to work on his story, and "Hairpins," one of the most appealing stories Mr. Sullivan has ever written, was the result.

"Hairpins" is a story of an old-fashioned wife, who, through her failure to keep up her personal appearance, failed to hold the interest of her husband. When she realizes her mistakes she sets about to live differently. Fred Niblo directed "Hairpins," under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince, George Barnes was cameraman.

POLICE WINK AT BIG SALOON AND GAMBLING DEN'S RUN WIDE OPEN

The Bronx section of New York is known as the abiding place of a staid and law-obeying citizenry. It was a great shock, therefore, when sordid rumors began circulating recently that within the Bronx's confines a big saloon was running wide open, with "white mule" being served abundantly and openly over the bar; with big poker games for large stakes a continuous performance, and shootings and killings a mere incident of the day's routine.

As is usual with rumors, the word passed from mouth to mouth, with whispers of daily sordid happenings, of crooked card games, of girls gone bad, and men being shot down without a moment's notice. Could it be harboring a viper? The Bronx wondered.

Of course the police got wind of it, and a spectacular clean-up was planned. The appointed night came, and the police, in solid phalanx, descended upon the reported resort where vice had its nightly rendezvous.

Just a rumor. What was their surprise, then to find that the gamblers and the gunmen were just an aggregation of re-
