

People Here and There

M. C. Metz, a member of the firm of S. Metz & Sons, horse-breeders, returned yesterday from Chicago and will spend some time here. Mrs. Metz, who accompanied Mr. Metz to Chicago from here, will remain there for the winter.

Prices for building materials are higher now than in the past and materials are very scarce, says P. A. Ballargeon, Seattle architect and builder who has been in the city for the past three days. Mr. Ballargeon says that manufacturers are curtailing manufacturing because of present conditions. Building is at a standstill in Seattle, he states. Mr. Ballargeon has the contract for the new boys' dormitory at St. Joseph's Academy.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY OFFICES AND OFFICERS

for her husband nor accompany the remains to Ireland for burial, her physician said.

Mrs. Mae Swiney's endurance during the long fast of her husband was the marvel of those who watched the case. She was at the prison daily and apparently always cheerful. Even at the death of the lord mayor she retained her composure and at the inquest was so cool as to disconcert the coroner. She followed the body of her husband to St. George's cathedral last night, and participated in the simple services accompanying the arrival there.

NEW MEXICAN ENVOY

WASHINGTON.—Manuel C. Tellez will represent the Mexican government here, following the departure of High Commissioner Fernando Calderon, Calderon and his whole staff are leaving. He was unable to settle oil controversies between his government and the United States because of a lack of cooperation by Mexico.

ATTORNEY CHARGES HEALTH OFFICIALS MISCONSTRUE ANTI-COMPULSORY VACCINATION BILL

Recently there has appeared in the public press, articles emanating from the public health authorities, attacking the proposed ANTI-COMPULSORY VACCINATION AMENDMENT to the State Constitution to be voted on by the people at the coming election, November 2nd. The health authorities, in these articles, attempt to misconstrue and thus to mislead the public with reference to the scope of this amendment and its operation, and with this object in view, sought and obtained an opinion from a Deputy City Attorney that seems to fit in with the desires of the opponents of this measure.

The undersigned deems it his duty at this time, inasmuch as he prepared the initiative petition incorporating this amendment for the Public School Protective League of Oregon, to defend this amendment against these unjust attacks.

There can be found nothing in that amendment that can possibly warrant the impression being spread broadcast by the health officers that it will abolish the present laws or prevent the passage of any legislation in the future covering reasonable quarantine and sanitary practices by the health authorities. Most of the people rightly believe in quarantine and sanitary measures.

Here is the proposed Anti-Compulsory Vaccination Amendment, which reads as follows:

"No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication, shall be made a condition in this state for admission to, or attendance in, any public school, college, university or other educational institution; or for the employment of any person in any capacity, or for the exercise of any right, the performance of any duty, or the enjoyment of any privilege."

There is nothing in this amendment that can warrant any such assumption that it will prevent quarantine of contagious diseases and the enforcement of sanitary measures. Quarantine is not vaccination, inoculation or medication.

The only words that the opponents of this amendment can possibly select to misconstrue is the phrase, "or other medication," in the clause, "No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication, shall be made a condition in this state, being general, includes all kinds of medical treatment. If so, then our legal friends in the City Hall apparently have failed to apply the elementary rules of statutory construction in making their "analysis" of this amendment for the Health Bureau.

That this amendment will abolish all the health activities of the public authorities, that it will result in increased epidemics and deaths, that it will increase the population of the underworld, etc., are highly imaginative assertions, for which no basis can be found in this amendment if the legal rules of construction are applied.

It is an elementary principle of statutory construction long established and recognized everywhere, and supported by a mass of precedents, that "When there are general words following particular and specific words, the former must be confined to things of the same kind. This is shown as the rule or doctrine of ejusdem generis." (Sutherland on Statutory Construction, Vol. 2, Sec. 422).

In the case of Nichols vs. State, 127 Ind. 406, the rule is clearly stated: "The rule is that where words of a particular description in a statute are followed by general words that are not so specific and limited, unless there be a clear manifestation of a contrary purpose, the general words are to be construed as applicable to persons or things or cases of like kind to those designated by the particular words, to illustrate, in a statute are the words 'warehousemen, wharfingers and other persons.' The words, 'other persons' the court holds, 'must be understood to refer to the other persons ejusdem generis' (same general character) 'viz, those who conduct the business of warehousemen or wharfingers with some other pursuit, such as shipping, grinding or manufacturing.'" (Bucher v. Commonwealth 102 Pa. St. 555) Many illustrations from adjudicated cases could be given if space permitted.

Applying this principle to our amendment, the words, "or other medication," must be understood to refer to any medication of the same general nature or character as described by the words that precede the word "medication," that is, any process of injecting infectious matter into the blood and body of the individual.

It is not the purpose of this amendment to prevent anyone from voluntarily submitting to vaccination or to prevent any physician vaccinating anyone who requests it. But it is clearly the purpose and substance of the amendment to prevent vaccination being forced by compulsory measures upon those who do not believe in the so-called efficacy of vaccination and who wish and should have the right to protect themselves from its deleterious and often disastrous and fatal effects. Authentic statistics are abundant, notwithstanding the "statistics" of the doctors to the contrary, that inoculation is dangerous, causes much sickness and some deaths, and plants the seeds in the human system of future diseases.

So, Mr. and Mr. Voter, do not be deceived by the misleading propaganda of the American Medical Association and those who are interested in forcing you to be inoculated, which propaganda is designed to defeat this amendment; but go to the polls and vote in the interests of humanity and medical freedom by voting YES on the amendment entitled "Anti-Compulsory Vaccination Amendment."

Please see the affirmative argument by the Public School Protective League, printed in the pamphlet on pages 21 and 22, mailed to all voters by the state.
