THE WOMAN'S WORD.

I reckon I'd run for President,
But the woman says—says she:
It'll take you far,
Where the great folks are—
You'd better stay home with me!
Better stay home where the light is bright,
And the peaceful dreams come with the night.

Oh, I reckon I'd run for President,
Cause the place is proud and high;
But the cabin low
Is what I know,
And it's never hid from the sky.
The Washington-place is fine, I know,
But home has got me, so I jes' won't go!

THE CYCLONE

The election proved a cyclone for Harding and Coolidge. The disaster as far as it relates to the Wilson administration, the League of Nations issue and the Cox candidacy must be freely admitted. The verdict was overwhelming. The victors are entitled to felicitations on their triumph and these are extended with the wish that events will justify the people in their choice. The interests of the country are paramount. Partisanship is a small matter.

Henceforth the burden of government will be upon the republicans and they will be untrammelled, having not only the presidency but both houses of congress. Therefore they will have free opportunity to put their policies into practice and to prove the merits of those policies. The democrats may retire with considerable pride in the prosperity of the country during their regime and in the fact that a great president of their faith was an able wartime executive and did his utmost for vindication of the nation's war aims and the cause of permanent peace. He is not the first good man who has been crucified by people he sought to serve.

As to what caused the landslide for Harding various opinions will be put forward. No doubt many things contributed to the event but a reasonable view is that people wanted a change. The result of course is a mandate against the treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations. Just what that all may really mean is now up to Mr. Harding to say. He faces the task of dealing with leaders in his own party who hold radically different views. He has a man's job on his hands and all will hope that he proves to be the man for the job.

THE CREDIT SITUATION

NOW that the election is over a topic of absorbing interest relates to the probable business trend throughout the country. How far will the price decline go; what sort of business conditions may we expect during the coming year. Some light on the subject is thrown by a statement, under date of October 20 by the National Bank of Commerce of New York and is here given for what it may be worth:

The downward revision of prices continues to be the factor dominating the general business outlook. The movement is a natural and inevitable corrective of the unstable condition created in the previous period of rising prices, reckless public buying and widespread speculation. Falling prices are not a recent development. Before the close of 1919 the prices of a number of important commodities had begun to decline. By spring of 1920 a definite downward trend had been established. Since then the movement has been accelerated, until within recent weeks it has forced general recognition that the period of excessive buying at rising prices has definitely ended. Business must now go forward on a lower price level. This readjustment cannot be effected without embarrassment in individual cases. It will be effected, however, without serious general results by reason of the inherent strength of the credit situation and the assured cooperation of the banks with business.

The banks are amply prepared to finance business while it is working out a more normal basis of operation and a stable level of prices. This process will require the employment of a large volume of credit. Inventories cannot be disposed of abruptly. In many lines, owing to general indisposition to buy, their liquidation must be effected very gradually. Meanwhile, they must be financed. The long run effect of the downward price movement however will be to ease the credit situation. The freedom from disturbance with which the readjustment is effected depends largely on the willingness of business to recognize the changed conditions.

Stabilization on a new price basis does not involve a return to the prewar price level. For nearly two decades prior to the war, prices had been rising steadily. On economic grounds this rise might reasonably have been expected to continue, had there been no war. Moreover, the improvement effected in our credit and banking machinery since the inauguration of the federal reserve system now enables a given gold reserve to finance a greater volume of business at higher prices than was practicable in the prewar days. The country's present gold reserve greatly exceeds the prewar reserves, and this enlarged and concentrated gold reserve will have a sustaining influence on the new price level. The actual level at which prices will be stabilized can only be worked out gradually on the basis of actual transactions over an extended period.

Town spirit is not all confined to the small places. In Chicago Mayor Thompson recently declared in a speech that "St. Louis is asleep." A St. Louis woman in the audience quickly arose to object and the speaker had to amend his statement.

Senator Borah says the League of Nations is dead; it will next be in order to hear from Messrs. Taft and Wickersham.

Congratulations, Mayor Hartman.

ASIATIC LABOR MAY ENTER PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 3.—(A. P.)—Admission of Asiatic contract labor into the Philippine islands with certain restrictions was advocated by Theodore M. Malaw, secretary of the interior, in an address before the Fifth Agricultural Congress of the Philippines which held its sessions during the first week in September. He said he believed that the importation of laborers under contract from various countries is a means of developing the natural resources of the Philippines should be given a trial, but if it should prove detrimental to the interests of the Filipino people, he would favor the repeal of such a law. "What we need now," said Mr. Malaw, "is not so much foreign intelligence and leadership, but more laborers for our agriculture, who will be guided by our intelligence and leadership. They are what we need, and they are precisely what we can not get with our present laws. These laws prohibit labor contracts, the admission of illiterates and the admission of Chinese (three elements which we must have, if we need any immigrants at all.)"

Mens Suit and Overcoat Sale

underway in full swing. While many have been sold, there are still hundreds of men's and young men's suits and overcoats yet to be disposed of. They have all been subject to drastic cuts as the prices below will indicate.

BOND CLOTHES, all of which are included in this sale, are made especially for us by Society Brand, Holtz of Rochester, Hornthal, Fisk and Co., and A. B. Kirchbaum Company.
