THE CALL OF THE BANJO.

(By Frank L. Stanton.)

"They tell me," said the feller, "that I've lost my happy chance,
But I never hear a banjo but I'm wantin' for to dance!"

"There's a swing
An' a ring,
An' a 'Step it off!' By jing!
Oh, I never hear a banjo but I'm wantin' for to dance."

"They tell me," said the feller, "that I'm gittin' old an' gray,
But you jes' watch my capers when it's dancin' time o' day!"

"With a swing
An' a ring,
An' a 'Step it off!' By jing!
Oh, the world's a-spinnin' round me when it's dancin' time o' day!"

IN POLAND

THE new Republic of Poland has successfully emerged from a great crisis in a way which it must be admitted was a surprise to many of its well wishers who feared that the strain of the bolshevik invasion would be too great for the infant state to withstand.
As a result of this great crisis through which the Polish people have passed they have learned to live and to work together as they could not have learned in years of peace. It is true that the Poles are a peculiarly homogeneous people. They speak the same language almost without dialects. In religion and in their love of country there is not the slightest difference between those Poles who formerly lived in Austria, Germany, Russia or for that matter America as well. In spite of this, the process of welding groups which have lived under foreign governments for more than a century into a compact national state capable of defending its existence against a foe greatly superior in numbers is one that requires time.
In view of the charges of landlordism hurled against the present Polish government, it is interesting to note that in the midst of the military crisis the Polish Diet passed a measure of agrarian reform which ought to remove the greatest obstacle to the development of the peasant classes.
In the United States there is a general failure to understand the land-holding situation in Poland. The bolshevik propaganda bureau has assiduously spread the report that Poland is controlled by the great landed proprietors and that the peasants are practically serfs. The fact is that at the beginning of the world war 66 per cent of Congress or Russian Poland was in the hands of small proprietors. In German and Austrian Poland the percentage was even higher.
The new land law will greatly increase the number of small land owners. The proportion of small land holdings in Poland is greater than in either England or France. Most of the great estates of the Radziwill, Lubomirski, Potocki and other great families are in Russia, where they have been held for hundreds of years, but have now been confiscated by the bolsheviks.

CAN HE SERVE BOTH FACTIONS?

IN SOME respects post election comments have been more interesting than was the campaigning carried on before November 2. The subject now appears from a new angle and there is greater opportunity for candor.
The New York World says it has been easy to abuse President Wilson, but to succeed him is a man's job. As to the disposition to be made of the treaty the World says:
As to the League of Nations, none of its true supporters will falter on account of Mr. Harding's majorities. Appealing from Philip drunk to Philip sober, they will keep their faith steadfast and unwavering. Every reason that existed yesterday in favor of the ratification of the covenant exists today. None of the elementary facts have been changed by the ballots that were cast for Mr. Harding.
The time has now come when Republicans like Mr. Taft and Mr. Root and Mr. Hoover and Mr. Struts must redeem their own pledges. They have said to the voters that Mr. Harding's speeches against the league could all be ignored and that his election would mean that the United States would join the other nations in guaranteeing the peace of the world. The duty of fulfillment rests with them. Hundreds of the thousands of the friends of the league voted for Mr. Harding in the belief that Mr. Taft and his associates had told them the truth. The record is made and the obligation must be redeemed, or they too will have been convicted of defrauding both the living and the dead.
By the same token it may be argued that many hundreds of thousands of people voted for Mr. Harding on the assurance by Johnson, Borah et al, that he (Harding) would never take up with the league and had scrapped it. "The duty of fulfillment" likewise remains with Johnson, Borah & Co. and they know it.
How is Harding to please both sides?

Portland papers are wondering why so many outside counties voted No on their port measure. Because for years Portland papers, or some of them, have advised people to vote against any measure they did not understand and the port bill was not clear to the people.

One of the saddest stories of the age deals with how the burdensome income tax is grinding the life out of the poor. All the millionaires want that tax repealed because it is proving so oppressive to those who are exempt.

How can Europe buy our foodstuffs when they have to spend all their money for bullets?

But we dont hear many compliments on the street lighting in Pendleton's business section.

Jinks Taylor is still after the stiffs.

LADS PUT UP AUTO AS BAIL FOR RELEASE

Bond of $250 each was put up Saturday evening by Henry Snyder, Glen Moulton, Arthur Copeland and Kenneth Chapman, youths arrested Friday night and Saturday for entering the Oregon Bakery Friday night. The first two named were last to be taken into custody and are alleged to have been in the store while the other stood guard.
An auto belonging to one of the lads served as bail for them all. At present they are being held in bond to appear before the grand jury, but the district attorney has not had opportunity to investigate their cases. They are all about 18 and 19 years of age.

CONFESSION

Groping in the Dark

Time was when the purchase of advertising space was a "blind groping in the dark." Advertisers had no means of checking a publisher's statement of circulation and often these figures were unreliable.

In six years the Audit Bureau of Circulations has solved this perplexing problem. By a systematic analysis of distribution and methods, this organization is able to supply just the data an advertiser needs. The darkness is dispelled and the bright light of verified facts takes its place. Space buyers no longer find it necessary to grope in the dark.

There are no dark spots in the EAST OREGONIAN'S circulation. Our records are audited by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.
