SEVEN LIBRARIES IN COUNTY SYSTEM NOW STANDARD BRANCHES

New Venture in Organization Originates in Umatilla Institution and is Taken up in Salem as Idea for All State.

Seven branch libraries of the county system are now standard branches, and one or two others may qualify before December 31, according to a report made by Miss Sabra Nason, librarian, at a meeting of the county library board yesterday.

This is a new venture in county library organization and originated in the Umatilla county library.

Among the requirements for a standard branch are that the branch be open at least two afternoons a week, of three hours each; that the library be kept attractive, well lighted and heated and accessible to men, women and children; that it be equipped with circulating books equal or more than the population and furnishing an unabridged dictionary, atlas, encyclopedia, reference books and other supplies.

HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEMS DISCUSSED LAST NIGHT

How Pendleton high school serves its students and the city and how the city may serve the high school constituted the basis of an extensive program by the High School Parent-Teachers Association at the county library club room last evening.

During the program talks were given by Dr. F. E. Boyden, Superintendent H. E. Inlow, Miss Eva Hansen, physical training teacher, Richard Hanley, athletic coach, Austin Landreth, high school principal, E. B. Aldrich, editor of the East Oregonian, Fred Bennett, county agriculture agent, and Harold J. Warner, local attorney and graduate of the high school.
