In the Hands of G. W. KELLY

The Entire Stock of Jim Beard's Cash Store All to be Placed on Public Sale For What It Will Fetch For cash

THE RELENTLESS HAND OF FATE

Has placed within your easy grasp mighty possibilities of economy and of such importance that when you enter the store and see the ridiculously low prices we have placed on this high grade merchandise you will hardly believe your eyesight. The most critical shoppers and the most prudent and shrewdest buyers are especially invited. They will realize their most sanguine hopes. Don't miss this golden opportunity.

PLAN TO BE HERE
SATURDAY

Following the lead of the greatest merchants in the country in their attempt to stop the ever-rising cost of merchandise, Jim Beard has determined to reduce prices to a level which has not been known for many, many years. A reconstruction period now faces the whole mercantile world. Every merchant is now asking the all-important question, "What is going to happen?" Jim Beard said to me, "Kelly, I have far more merchandise than is needed during this reconstruction period—and, for a fact I am tired of packing the load. I want to sell off about half of it. Can you do it?" "I can sell anything if I put the price low enough," I replied. "Well, I am willing to let you name the prices so long as you turn the goods into money," said Beard. So there you are. Everything in this magnificent stock will be marked down, and during this sale Umattilla County folk can buy anything in the store at one-third, one-half, and in many instances less than one-half off. Mr. Beard and I walked over to the Corduroy Pants. "Here are a lot of Corduroys," said he. "They are marked $6.50. What will we sell 'em for now?" "Four eighty nine," I replied. "Sell 'em for less—make it $3.98," said Beard. "Maybe they wouldn't believe it," I protested. "Why shouldn't they believe it?" asked Beard. "I've been here since Hector was a pup, and I've never handed out anything but cold facts." So I pocketed my objections, and there you are. The ridiculously low prices that I am marking on this merchandise would put life into even Pharaoh's mummy, so come expecting to see the most sensational sale conceived since Cain and Abel played tag in the Garden of Eden.

Yours for Good Bargains,
G. W. KELLEY.

I AM KNOW

from Denver to the coast as the world's greatest bargain giver. When I take over a stock of merchandise to reduce or close out, it must move at once, no matter what the sacrifice may cost. Selling a stock like this is no snap. But I know that if I take this high-grade stock and cut the prices low enough the public will respond quickly. And if you think I have not cut the prices to the quick, drop in at 10:23 a. m. Saturday, when the big slaughter starts.

G. W. KELLEY.
