SETTINGS OF GREAT BEAUTY DISTINGUISH NEW DE MILLE FILM

Stage settings of unusual beauty are assured in any photoplay bearing Cecil B. De Mille's name and "Something to Think About," the Paramount picture which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre today easily reaches the high standard set by previous De Mille productions.

But "Something to Think About" has, in addition to several stage settings of remarkable beauty, some of the most realistic backgrounds of a humble sort ever seen in a motion picture production. The story offers a great opportunity for contrast and due advantage has been taken of every opportunity. In this production, has been supplied a humble blacksmith's home, his work shop and the poverty-stricken apartment wherein some of the most important action of the story transpires. Against this background Cecil B. De Mille placed a home of exquisite beauty. By thus contrasting the two surroundings, they have emphasized the realism of one and the artistic perfection of the other.

Notable examples of this decorative lavishness are to be found in the Oriental living room, library and music room which comprises one portion of the residence in question. Another striking sample of the ultra-modern influences in interior decoration is in the dining room of the same dwelling. A laudible of striking beauty completes this household.

BRYANT WASHBURN IS FINELY SUPPORTED IN "BURGLAR PROOF"

Lois Wilson, Grace Morse, C. H. Giddart and Clarence Burton are well-known players who take part in the new Paramount comedy-drama, "Burglar Proof," starring Bryant Washburn which comes to the Alta theatre for two days beginning today. It tells of a man who, finding that the world hates a tightwad, decides to turn over a new leaf. The "turning" is replete with humor for the playgoers.

The story is finely developed and presents several highly amusing situations. The titles are witty and one of them explains what "Burglar Proof" means. In other words, the hero is so "tight," it would take a
