FLORIDA BECOMES A SOUTHERN SEA ISLAND

George Fitzmaurice Transforms Sections of Beach for "Idols of Clay"

George Fitzmaurice transforms a bit of the South Sea Islands to the coast of Florida for his latest Paramount production, "Idols of Clay" which local screen admirers will have the pleasure of viewing at the Alta Theatre today.

Mr. Fitzmaurice and his company, which included Mae Murray and David Powell as the featured players, made their headquarters at Fort Lauderdale, some thirty miles north of Miami, where they used a wide stretch of beach. Here they erected a number of huts in the true fashion of South Sea Islanders. The fisheries, coconut groves, and tropical vegetation needed for the general atmosphere were all ideally located.

"Idols of Clay" casts Mae Murray as the unsophisticated daughter of a South Sea recluse and pearl smuggler, who in time reaches the heights of London society and in the end is rescued just in time for a horrible existence in a Chinese den in the Limehouse slums. David Powell has the role of a young English sculptor who has lost all faith in women and his art, but regains both through the devotion of the girl from the South Seas.

ARCADE TODAY

A striking plot is developed in "His Own Law," which comes to the Arcade Theatre, for two days, commencing today.

J. C. MacNeir, a construction engineer of repute, has a nuncanny habit of stealing away from his associates immediately upon the completion of an engineering project, and burying himself in a drunken stupor in the tenderloin district.

During one of these sprees, he meets and quarrels with a young French engineer whom he chances to meet in a cheap saloon. A reconciliation follows and the two "bunk" for the night in a cheap lodging house. In the morning they resort to digging ditches for breakfast money. "Frenchy," as MacNeir dubs his newly acquired friend, is unaware of his new companion's identity until one of MacNeir's men finds him in the ditch and urges his return to his desk. Bewildered and amazed at the sudden change in events, "Frenchy" follows his erstwhile companion in misery.

How the beautiful girl comes into "Frenchy's" life and his subsequent return to his native land at the call to arms, leaving his betrothed alone and his return after having been announced dead on the field of battle; his denunciation of the man who has sacrificed his all to protect his friend's wife and child; the "battle of hearts," proving a "friend in need is a friend indeed," makes this latest Hobart Bosworth production "His Own Law" one of the supreme pictures of the year.

MONTANA GOVERNOR IS SECOND FROM PARTY

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 29.—(A. P.)—Joseph M. Dixon, of Missoula, who is to take the oath on January 3 next, as governor of Montana, will be the second republican to hold that office since the admission of the state to the Union. Joseph K. Toole the first governor after admission, was a democrat. He served from Nov. 8, 1889, to January 2, 1893. Ex-governor Toole is now a resident of California. The second governor of Montana, J. E. Richards, of Silver Bow county, was a republican and he also now lives in California. His term was 1893-1897. Robert B. Smith, the third governor, was elected by a fusion of democrats and republicans and was of Beaverhead and Lewis and Clark counties. He died in Kalispell several years ago. The term he served was 1897-1901.

Mr. Toole, the state's second elected governor, was again chosen in 1906 and again in 1910, but resigned in 1905, toward the close of his second term, when Edwin L. Norris of Beaverhead became governor. Mr. Norris, also a democrat, was reelected in 1908. He was succeeded in 1912 by Samuel V. Stewart of Madison, who was to make way for Mr. Dixon, after completing a second term.

All of Montana's former governors were lawyers by profession except Mr. Rickard, who was formerly a Methodist minister, leaving the pulpit to enter business.

Governor-elect Dixon is a native of North Carolina. He came to Montana in 1891, locating in Missoula. He was admitted to the bar in 1892 and became county attorney two years later. He went to the legislature in 1896 and to congress in 1902, serving two terms in the lower house of the national body. In 1907 he was elected to the senate, but was defeated for reelection in 1912 when he followed Theodore Roosevelt into the progressive party and was national campaign manager for that organization.

Since 1913, Mr. Dixon has been residing in Missoula on his stock farm in Flathead county. He was for many years publisher of daily papers
