DESTITUTE EX-SERVICE MEN APPEAL FOR ALMS IN SHOPPING DISTRICT

British Vets Assume Role of Street Entertainers for Subsistence and Some Wear Masks to Conceal Identity.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(U. P.)—Shopping in the world famous Bond and Oxford street districts this holiday season was done mostly by the accompaniment of music rendered by unemployed ex-service men driven by destitution to assume the role of street entertainers.

Their appeals were not in vain. In the cheerfulness of their tunes, played on all sorts of instruments ranging from jew's harps and mouth-organs to brass horns and street pianos, passers-by seemed to sense something of that "carry on" spirit which a little more than two years ago, was enabling the same men to endure the hardships and dangers of war in France and Flanders.

Some of these alms-seekers wore masks, indications of past superiority, for the masked musicians were discharged officers.

In front of jewellers' windows with their brilliant displays of costly things, these poorly clad itinerants formed a sharp contrast. But their renditions of "Everything is Peaches Down in Georgia," and other popular airs gave opportunity for expression of the Yuletide spirit and brought a generous dol of silver from the purses of shoppers. And in the faces of donors and recipients could be read a mutual hopefulness for the coming of brighter Christmas seasons.

CHARMING PERSONALITY WOMAN LEADER'S GIFT THREE MEN OF GOTHAM SEARCH ENTIRE CITY FOR ONE HOUSE FLY

It is given to very few women to attend the direction of a Symphony Orchestra; in fact there are but two or three of them in the country. In the forefront is Mrs. Frances Knight, gifted conductor of the Ladies Columbia Symphony Orchestra, which appears here on Wednesday evening, under the local management of the Pendleton Post American Legion.
Mrs. Knight has a most vivacious and vibrant personality. Farther than that of a masculine type, as one might suppose in view of her position as organizer and director of this famous orchestra, Frances Knight is one of the most retiring and sweetest dispositioned women that have appeared before the public on the concert platform. Local committees and managers everywhere constantly refer to her most gracious personality and the modest way in which she conducts; and yet it is noted from the instant she steps on the platform the orchestra is under her direct supervision and subservient to her every wish, immediately responsive to her baton.
The recent movement of "Women to the Forefront" in the public affairs of the nation has brought many women into national and political life, but it has remained for Frances Knight, a western woman, to be the first to successfully organize and direct a Symphony Orchestra and to take it across the country for an international tour.
Leaders in social and civic life in this community will unquestionably be very interested in hearing Mrs. Knight's orchestra and will be given an opportunity of meeting this gifted woman at the close of the concert.

Efforts Vain in Gay White Way But Cheap Manhattan Restaurant Yields One Dejected and Hungry Specimen.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Four sane and sober men celebrated that noisy first hour of 1921 by visiting New York's gay cafes and hotels to see if they could find one winter house-fly. Unsuccessful along the Gay White Way they went lower to Manhattan Island where the less luxurious restaurants held their sleepless celebrations.

And in one of them they found a sorry specimen with a lean and hungry look. The Philadelphia man in the party of four did the dirty work. Then he sent the remains to the merchants' association which annually presents a scarf pin bearing a golden fly to the person who first kills a fly on New Year's Day.

"The capture of this insect, small as it is, means that we shall have several billions fewer flies next summer," said the funeral oration accompanying the scarf pin.
