MACHINISTS UNION WOULD AVOID STRIKES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(U. P.)—The international association of machinists, with 350,000 members, is working to eliminate the economic waste to the public, employers and the workers themselves through strikes and lockouts. General Secretary Davidson announced the anti-strike campaign of the association includes a setting up of shop committees, arbitration boards and the use of the "Norfolk idea" in handling economic disputes. The Norfolk idea was carried out at Norfolk, Va., where the association bought the $40,000 mortgage of one machine shop which refused to settle differences with the men. Davidson said the employers association was bringing pressure to bear to coerce the shops into adoption of a policy discriminating against union workers. The mortgage was purchased through the Mount Vernon savings bank of Washington, which was controlled by the association. "During 1919, strikes and lockouts cost members of the machinists association $23,350,000," said Davidson. "The loss to employers was approximately $207,000,000. There is no way even to estimate the loss of the public."
