SLAYING IN IRELAND

TOTAL 11 AT WEEK END

BELFAST, Jan. 24.—(A. P.)—The body of a former soldier, Dennis Dyer, was found yesterday near Bandon. A label was pinned to the clothes saying that he had been condemned as a spy.

Two farmers William Elliott and William Charter, were kidnapped yesterday. Elliott's body later was found in a bog near Bellintra.

Dublin Castle reports three county Galway men were shot dead Saturday while attempting to evade arrest.

Two constables who had been shot dead and another who had been wounded were found Saturday night on the Stranoodan road.

The constables, Henry Taylor and Clark, went for a walk in the country Saturday night. On their failure to return a searching party was sent out. The bodies of Henry and Taylor were found in the road about a quarter of a mile from the barracks. They were riddled with bullets.

Constable Clark was not found until today, when he was discovered unconscious in a building near where the bodies were found. It is supposed that after being wounded he managed to crawl into the building. He was removed to a hospital where he was found to be suffering from six dangerous bullet wounds.

Sergeant Kemp, who was wounded in a bomb attack at Armagh about a week ago, died today. He was the eleventh death from violence during the week-end.
