INDIAN WILL BE CONTESTED IN WHITE MAN'S COURT OF LAW

Indians used to die and go to the happy hunting grounds, leaving to their relatives their possessions to distribute in potlatch. Thomas Saml, an Indian woman aged 59, recently went to her ward and left a will in which she gave to James and Mrs. Wash-Kash 150 acres of valuable wheat land on the reservation. By the old order, each took what was parcelled out to him. But with the coming of the modern instrument, the will, has come its accompanying contest. Mrs. Ross Emmett, who asserts she is the nearest relative to the deceased Thomas Saml, seeks to have the will set aside. Anthony "Joe" Craig, is also interested. So, today, instead of a potlatch, attorneys are arguing the merits of the respective claims before Major E. L. Swartzland, Indian agent, as judge. Will M. Peterson, represents the Wash-Kashes and Judge R. A. Lowell Mrs. Emmett and Craig.
