AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK WILL ENLARGE QUARTERS IN SPRING

Director's Room, Multigraph and Supply Apartment, Stenographer's and Remittance Working Space to be Added.

Addition of a directors' room, multigraph and supply room and stenographers' and remittance clerks' working quarters will be made to the American National Bank between April 1 and June 1, according to plans announced today by officers of the institution. The new quarters will occupy the space now leased to the law firm of Carter & Smythe and will result in the bank's utilizing for its own business the entire lower floor of its building.

Improvements costing more than $2500 are in prospect. The room for stenographers and clerks will be 18x19 feet and occupy virtually the one-third space adjacent to Alta street. The supply room will take up the next 15 feet and in rear will be the directors' room, 12 1/2 by 17 feet. A wide archway from the present stenographers' quarters will admit to the new working quarters, and doors will lead from the rear of the present space to the other two rooms.

In addition a small rest room for the women employees of the institution will be built in rear of the supply room. This and the directors room will be furnished very modernly.

The entrance to the Carter & Smythe offices will be removed and a large window placed in the space. The Alta street doorway just west of the Carter & Smythe space, used for employees of the bank, will be retained.

"Crowding of our working space at present is responsible for the decision to enlarge," one of the officers said today. "We expect to start work April 1 and be through by June 1." When the American National Bank first started business in its own building it occupied about one third of the ground floor space. A few years ago the north half of the present banking room was added, giving a room for safety deposit customers, a women's room and an office for the bank's agriculturist. The contemplated addition will mark the growth to a full occupation of its main floor, virtually 50 by 100 feet. Last spring the bank expended $12,000 in remodeling the second story, which is occupied by lawyers, and physicians' offices.

Found—The Perfect Trigger Finger

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—The most perfect trigger finger in the world belongs to T. K. Lee of Birmingham. He's the best all around shot of them all.

Squeezing the trigger at the right time is his secret for hitting the bull's-eye.

Lee shoots one beam just about as well as another. With the small bore rifle he holds 12 world's records, 14 with the pistol and revolver.

Here's how he hits 'em

From 1912 to 1920 inclusive he scored 17,003 out of 17,016 in indoor rifle shooting—the bull's-eye being only two-thirds the size of a dime. Firing distance is 75 feet.

Won revolver and pistol championships in 1919

Set world's record with pistol in indoor shooting in 1918 and equaled it in 1919

Won pocket revolver championships in 1920

Some of his scores with the rifle: 1999 out of a possible 2000; 4599 out of 4600, 2200 perfect, and 999 out of 1000

Lee is a fancy shot, too. In exhibition shooting at Birmingham he made the smallest group record with a .22-caliber rifle at 100 yards. He put 10 shots so close together that a ball dollar covered them all.
