BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

The seventh birthday anniversary of little Joe Smith, son of Mrs. Clara Porter Smith, was made merry yesterday at a party at the Porter home on Riverside, twenty-six boys and girls being asked for an afternoon of play. Doris Mable and Cleo Elgin won the honors in a contest which involved pinning the tail on an elephant. George Berry and Mary Manning received the consolation prizes. A candy hunt formed another pleasing diversion. The climax of the afternoon's enjoyment was reached when the guests, each wearing a jaunty red cap, and led by the host, Joe Smith, and Doris Mable, marched to the dining room to the strains of a grand march played by Mrs. Alex Manning. A Valentine motif was used in the table decorations, and a color scheme of red was carried out in the candies which decked a huge white birthday cake and in the heart upon which the cake reposed.

PETROGRAD INVADED BY MUTINOUS SAILORS

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—(U. P.)—Martial law is proclaimed in Petrograd as a result of the invasion of the city by mutinous sailors from Kronstadt, the naval base of the former Russian capital, according to a Helsinki dispatch. Considerable fighting is reported in Kronstadt between sailors and troops rushed from Moscow. Advances indicated that the bolshevik troops were defeated.

FICKLE POPULACE MAY TOPPLE GREEK RULER

ATHENS, Feb. 9.—(U. P.)—Despite the fact that ninety-five per cent of the Greek people voting favored the return of King Constantine, the Hellenic crown rests lightly upon the alleged pro-German ruler's head. Constantine is back. Back to stay, according to the Royalists. But underneath the surface is an undercurrent that allied statesmen predict will make his future reign tempestuous. The Greek people brought Constantine back for two reasons. First, according to competent observers, because they were tired of the misrule of Venizelist partisans; secondly, because Constantine had been forcibly expelled and their vanity had been piqued.

Five days preceding the plebiscite, and prior to the election the national watchword was "Erchete—He is coming." Today is "Irthai—he has brought him." Tomorrow, a prominent Greek admiral who has served in diplomatic capacities in Paris and London, said, it may be "we have kicked him out."

A most significant observation noted by many, is the temper of the Greek soldier. Thousands were brought to Athens from Smyrna after the elections to participate in the plebiscite and welcome the king.

Several battalions mobilized were for return to the front. The regulars, who for more than a week have not been subject to military discipline upon order of M. Demetrius Gounaris, minister of war, were surly and sullen. They chafed:

"He is here. We have brought him. Now we are going back."

On the other hand, the new recruits marched forward singing the Constantine song, "The Son of the Eagles," and carried placards and pictures of Constantine.

Entente military observers stationed with the Greek army declare the morale has been maintained by constant assurance by Venizelists that they would soon occupy Constantinople and restore the standard of the Byzantine Empire over the Mosque where now flies the Star and Crescent.

King Constantine's hold on the people is half religious, half superstitious.

THREE PHONES

QUALITY

In the folklore runs the legend that some day a King and Warrior named Constantine will wrest from the Turks the capital Constantinople. The Great diet defending. The peasant, filled with royalist propaganda, believes that the present King is destined to be that Crusader.

Constantine goes to war—at present—he will have a war-weary population and bankrupt exchequer back of him assuming the entente falls to foot the bill. On the other hand, if he fails, he will have a disillusioned populace to explain matters to. Venizelos has a record to point out—thousands of square miles added to the national domain. He also has a record of ignominious flight to erase. But so did Constantine, and he came back.

Withdrawal of Allied credit would shoot the Greek army's morale to pieces, officials declare while relinquishment of the Greek Irredentist dream of Constantinople would eliminate the incentive that has kept the nation and its unresplendent populations united through more than eight continuous years of war.

If the allies adopt an obstructionist policy, Greek statement will be faced with the alternative of repudiating Constantine or forsaking their fondest dreams of an Irredentist Greece. Loyalties, headed by Gounaris and others, are for the latter. They believe Greece has bitten off a bigger bite of Turkey than she can digest. On the other hand they have Constantine to contend with. His policies are entirely Irredentist and imperialistic.

Wheat—it was an erratic market throughout the session and although the tendency was lower, the short covering movement of yesterday was renewed from time to time and caused numerous sharp rallies. News items were generally conducive to bearishness especially those touching on the foreign situation, telling of other countries offering grain to Europe at lower price than America. From all appearances, Great Britain has more wheat on hand than necessary, as they are selling both wheat and flour on credit to central Europe. Country offerings were reported light and the milling demand fairly good in the southwest, but smaller in the northwest. Texas and Oklahoma authorities reported green bug stories greatly exaggerated. The improved domestic situation is overshadowed by the reverse position of wheat elsewhere. We believe advances from this level will be difficult to maintain.

Debate Tomorrow—Members of the high school debating team will take the assembly period tomorrow for a debate between the two sides. No judges will be present to decide or make a decision. It will be the first practice debate for the teams before meeting Milton Friday evening. The affirmative team will leave Friday for Milton while the negative will remain here. Judges have not been chosen but it is thought that decision will be made tomorrow. The teams consist of Miss Estella Mills, and Rex Kramer on the negative, and Miss Thelma Blanchette and David Swanson on the affirmative. Miss Mills and Miss Blanchette will give the rebuttals. If Pendleton is successful in the debate Friday she will meet the winner of the Echo-Pilot Rock debate Feb. 25.

Pictures Taken for Annual.—Photographers from Aune's Studio were at the school this morning and took pictures of the Boys' Glee Club and members of the first basketball team with the substitutes, and members of the class basketball team. Work on the annual is progressing and letters have been sent to alumni for their support by the alumni editor, Genevieve Phelps. Material is pouring into the contribution box in the hall daily. The book is expected to go to press March 19, so that there will be no danger of not receiving them until after the dismissal of school in the spring.

JAPAN NEUTRALITY AND GERMAN SYMPATHY FOR SOVIET REGIME NEEDED

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9.—(A. P.)—Addressing the Moscow soviet recently, War Minister Trotsky argued that nothing must be done to irritate Japan, says a Helsinki dispatch. Japanese neutrality and German sympathy, he declared, were necessary for the soviet when it was beginning a war in the near east.

Trotsky also advocated maintenance of an army of 2,000,000, delay in the conclusion of peace with Poland, the concentration of soviet troops near the Baltic states and the Finnish frontier, and the most friendly relations with Germany from whom, he said, war materials were procurable.
