early. The moral character of the universe had been most signally vindicated. There was a universal vague hope of a great moral peace, of a new world order arising visibly and immediately on the ruins of the old. This hope was not a mere superficial sentiment. It was the intense expression at the end of the war of the inner moral and spiritual force which had upborne the peoples during the dark night of the war and had served them to an effort almost beyond human strength. Surely, surely, God had been with them in that long night of agony. His was the victory; His should be the peace. And President Wilson was looked upon as the man to make this great peace. He had voiced the great ideals of the new order; his great utterances had become the contractual basis for the armistice and the peace. The idealism of Wilson would surely become the reality of the new order of things in the peace treaty.

delorated. And then he emerged with the peace treaty. It was not a Wilson peace, and he made a fatal mistake in somehow giving the impression that the peace was in accord with his Fourteen Points and his various declarations. Not so the world had understood him. This was a Punic peace, the same sort of peace as the victor had dictated to the vanquished for thousands of years. It was not Alcibiades, it was a haggard, unlovely woman with features distorted with hatred, greed, and selfishness, and the little child that the woman carried was scarcely noticed. Yet it was for the saving of the child that Wilson had labored until he was a physical wreck. Let our other great statesmen and leaders enjoy their well-earned honors for their unquestioned success at Paris. To Woodrow Wilson, the apparent failure, belongs the undying honor, which will grow with the growing centuries, of having saved the "little child that shall lead them yet." No other statesman but Wilson could have done it. And he did it.

And the odium for all this fell especially on President Wilson. Round him the hopes had centered; round him the disillusion and despair now gathered. Popular opinion largely held him responsible for the bitter disappointment and grievous failure. The cynics scoffed; his friends were silenced in the universal disappointment. Little or nothing had been expected from the other leaders; the whole failure was put to the account of Woodrow Wilson. And finally America for reasons of her own joined the pack and at the end it was his own people who tore him to pieces.

Will this judgment, born of momentary disillusion and disappointment, stand in future, or will it be reversed? The time has not come to pass final judgment on either Wilson or any of the other great actors in the drama at Paris. The personal estimates will depend largely on the interpretation of that drama in the course of time. As one who saw and watched things from the inside I feel convinced that the present popular estimates are largely superficial and will not stand the searching test of time. And I have no doubt whatever that Wilson has been harshly, unfairly, unjustly dealt with, and that he has been made a scapegoat for the sins of others. Wilson made mistakes, and there were occasions when I ventured to sound a warning note. But it was not his mistakes that caused the failure for which he has been held mainly responsible.

Let us admit the truth, however bitter it is to do so for those who believe in human nature. It was not Wilson who failed. The position is far more serious. It was the human spirit itself that failed at Paris. It is no use passing judgment and making scapegoats of this or that individual statesman or

HERMISTON ROADS ARE BEING HARD SURFACED

(East Oregonian Special.)
HERMISTON, March 3.—At the election held recently in Hermiston the owners of land within the irrigation district by vote of 175 to 5 authorized the district board to water into contract with the United States reclamation service for additional construction. The estimated cost of this improvement is $750,000.00 and when this is done water will be delivered to every part of the district through cement pipes and concrete lined ditches. A number of the members of the local I. O. O. F. lodge attended the district convention at Hermiston last week. Hermiston will entertain the convention next spring.
The grading and hard surfacing of Hermiston avenue is nearing completion. East Main street and the diagonal road to the city limits will be improved, and the diagonal road through the project will be graded and gravelled early this spring.
The anniversary meeting of Vineyard lodge No. 266, L. O. O. F., will be held next Monday evening.
The campaign of tree planting is on. The commercial club committee has been enthusiastic in its work and the people have responded heartily.
A number of new residences are under construction and many more will be built this spring.
Local people welcome the news of the $15,000.00 appropriation for the experiment farm.

PAVING LIENS

The library fund was turned into the general fund of the city last night. Councilmen, however, felt that the ladies who arranged the events which made up this fund, amounting to $275, should have the disposal of it and they expressed desire to hold it until their wants were made known.
Miss Somerville who took an inventory of the city library will be paid $29 for her work the council decided. Councilman Bond said that the city library would be moved to its new home within a few days.
Reports of the various departments of the city were read and approved. The city engineer was authorized to go ahead with the Ash street sewer on force account.
The salary of $15 a month which has been paid to John Beam, city bookkeeper, during his illness for the past two months was ordered stopped. The usual bills were allowed and ordered paid.

BRITISH PREMIER

his customary smile and Premier Briand eyed the crowds anxiously. Only Marshal Foch was smiling as he acknowledged the applause with military salutes. The German delegates drove amid great silence. Dr. Von Siemens was pale and apparently distressed. Some of his assistants were smiling as they swaggered through the great entrance.
Challenge to Versailles Treaty
Lloyd-George, in a message to the Germans, declared there was no intention of opposing them. They must accept the responsibility for the war, however, and interpret their obligations accordingly, he said. He declared the German counter proposals were merely a ruse, adding that Von Siemens statement was a definite challenge to the Versailles treaty.
Mistakes Germany's Intentions
"The German people are under the impression that allied demands are intolerable and designed to enslave them. We regard them free. We content that a prosperous German is essential to civilization and regard a discontented, enslaved German a menace and burden to European civilization."
"The German delegation will examine the entire proposal and reply before Monday noon," Von Siemens said in reply. "However the British Premier mistakes Germany's intentions. I do not believe any occasion can arise for carrying out the threatened penalties."
Do Not Request Payment
"The entire will simply ask Germany to discharge her assumed responsibilities and repair the injuries she inflicted during the war," Lloyd-George said. "The allies deliberately refrained from requesting Germany to pay the allied war debts. They simply asked for reparations for material damages and personal injuries to their people."
