SHADOWS AND LIGHT.

Even in life's morning,
Whispers of Night,
Grief gives no warning—
Shadows and light.

Love in life's keeping,
The brief way along;
Thorns for his reaping,
But joy in his song!

So it is given—
Strength for the strife;
Love holding Heaven,
And Love all of life!

FROM AMONG THE PEOPLE

(By Dr. William E. Barton.)

IN 1645, the Great and General Court of Massachusetts assembled daily in the Old First Church in Boston, and devoted its time from May 14 to July 3 to what was practically a trial for impeachment of the foremost citizen of the colony. John Winthrop had been almost continuously for 15 years their governor and was then serving as lieutenant governor. A petty little squabble had risen as to the status of the militia company at Kington, and Winthrop had made a decision which perhaps was wrong, an error in judgment, and the people rose in wrath against the most illustrious man in New England, one whose patriotism, devotion and incorruptibility no man doubted. For more than six weeks Winthrop sat and heard harsh things said about himself.

The trial ended, and Winthrop was acquitted. He was vindicated, but hurt. "If the father of Miriam should spit in her face, should she not be ashamed seven days?" He stood and addressed the Great and General Court:

"I entreat you to remember that when you choose magistrates, you take them from among yourselves, men subject to like passions as you are. Therefore, when you see infirmities in us, you should reflect upon your own, and that would make you bear the more with us, and not be severe censors of the failings of your magistrates, when you have the continual experience of the like infirmities, in yourselves and others."

On March 4, 1921, the sovereign people of the United States seated a man in the presidential chair. Warren G. Harding is no superman; he is a man from among the people. He will make mistakes; let no man assume that he will avoid them. But he is under the strongest possible incentive to try to do his best. He was elected by a political party, but he is the president of the people of the whole nation. Let the people hold him in honor, uphold him with their confidence; and when he makes mistakes, let them read the pathetic speech of old John Winthrop, and remember that Warren G. Harding is a man chosen from among the people.

THEY MADE ONLY 51 MILLIONS LAST YEAR

IMMEDIATELY in wake of the advance in telephone rates in Oregon comes the financial statement of the Bell system for 1920 showing a net revenue for the year of over 51 millions and the heaviest dividends ever paid during a year—$35,376,793. In addition the annual report contains a chart showing that the company's stock ranges far above railroad stocks in the market while another chart shows the market superiority of telephone stock over railroad bonds, other industrial bonds and liberty bonds.

The figures as to the gratifying net profits of the corporation are over the signature of C. A. Heiss, comptroller, and the further fact is disclosed that the profit was netted after some 65 million dollars had been charged off to depreciation.

To the layman struggling with present day readjustment problems it would seem in view of its 51 millions the telephone company might have struggled along for a time at least without the heavy advance in rates secured from our benevolent public service commission. But then what is a public service commission for if not to grant increased rates to someone?

GIANT TASKS FACED BY HARDING AND CONGRESS

BY L. C. MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The new President and his Congress today face greater and more numerous tasks than any administration in American history, in the opinion of men of long service here in the House and Senate.

A mere recital of the questions put up to Harding and the 73rd Congress for solution is staggering Senators and members of the House who have been following the job declared today.

Washington had a huge task at the end of the Revolution. Andrew Johnson and U. S. Grant had the aftermath of the Civil War to cope with. Woodrow Wilson had the world war and the making of peace, but Harding, it was pointed out, has more than all of them put together.

He has made plain to his party leaders in Congress that he understands this, and has appealed for even demanded their co-operation.

Here are a few of the questions with which Harding and Congress must cope:

Foreign Relations
Peace with Germany.
Decision as to the manner in which the United States will cooperate with the rest of the world (if at all) in an association of nations for preservation of world peace.

Arrangements for repayment of more than $10,000,000,000 loaned to Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia, Greece and a dozen smaller nations.

The Russian problem, including trade with that country.

The Japanese question, including Japanese land ownership in California and Japanese immigration.

Spain; our relations with the Obregon government.
Columbia; the long pending treaty to settle the Panama canal dispute. Haiti and Santo Domingo; decision on policy to be pursued towards them. Securing of larger rights and privileges and facilities for cable communication.

Domestic Affairs
Tax revision.
The tariff.
Soldier bonus legislation.

Reorganization of the government on an economy and efficiency basis. Reconciliation of insurgent elements within the Republican party. Fixing of policies with respect to the size of the army and navy, particularly as to the trend of naval construction.

Establishment of a policy towards business, demanded to help stabilize and revive American industry, and involving a conflict between advocates of strict governmental regulation and those who want entire freedom from it.

Revision and repeal of espionage laws curtailing the freedom of speech and the press, involving a controversy over the need for certain safeguards against Bolshevism.

The railroads; settlement of claims, adoption of a policy.

The merchant marine; adoption of a policy, including decision on Panama canal tolls for American ships.

There are many other tasks, of course, in the main, of these nature, but all complicated and perplexing. Harding will find himself, too, according to prediction, between the millstones of opinion of his advisers, some of whom want the foreign questions solved first, while others demand instant attention to domestic issues, to the exclusion of all else.

CITY PLANS UNIQUE MAP
MISSOULA, Mont., March 5.—(A. P.)—This city is planning a unique convenience for automobile tourists, a huge map, that will entirely cover a great billboard, to be erected in the local automobile tourist camp. It will show forests, roads, passes, towns and will be painted by direction of the United States forest service.

GETTING AFTER JOBS.
WASHINGTON, March 5.—(U. P.)—Now comes the open season for pecking the president about postmasterships. Speaking from a presidential standpoint the worry isn't as bad as it used to be when the Civil Service was not even supposed to apply to postoffice jobs. Of course, there are those hereabouts who dabble deep in practical politics who might maintain that the civil service is still merely a beautiful theory as far as postmaster appointments are concerned and the boy with the biggest political pull invariably gets the appointment.

The mails of senators and congressmen are all cluttered up these days with petitions seeking postmastership recommendations, for others things being equal, the president's appointments to postmasterships are the recommendations of the members of congress of his party.

Miss Daisy Ashford really did write "The Young Visitors," and not James M. Barrie, as the public supposed. The book was written in Miss Ashford's childhood, and she does not intend to write another. She has appeared in readings from the book for charitable objects, and is soon to be married.

ECONOMY AND MERIT

Combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Blood Medicines.

In spite of the increased costs and great scarcity of important roots, herbs, etc., the standard of quality and the quantity of Hood's Sarsaparilla have been faithfully maintained, and are today the same as when this medicine was first perfected and offered to the public.

A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla will average to last three or four weeks, while others last but a week or two, and some even less time.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is effective as a blood purifying and tonic medicine and also after the flu, grip, fever and other debilitating, blood-poisoning diseases. It purifies the blood, creates an appetite, and makes food taste good.

SUGGESTS SPAIN JOIN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

MADRID, March 5.—(A. P.)—Suggestions that Spain form an alliance with France and England were attacked in the Spanish senate today by Count de la Morera, president of the Spanish American Academy of Science.

The senator made a plea in favor of the league of nations and said that Spain should join with other countries in "limiting armaments."

"We have been waiting for this for twelve hundred years," declared M. Stamboulinski, only representative of Bulgaria, as he placed his signature to the Peace Treaty at Paris.

Speeds Across English Channel To Avoid Husband Who Questioned Her Past

Katherine MacDonald, Most Beautiful Woman in America, Has Exciting Incident On Channel Steamer

"Across the English Channel," Katherine MacDonald, who had left London for some island resort, was hurriedly packed on the boat. She was accompanied on the boat by a sudden rising of the sea. Her husband had left her every morning for London, and she had just returned from a trip to London. She had been married in a church, with the presence of her husband, and she had been a member of the church for many years.

Genora Lisle, beautiful daughter of an English Army Officer, is compelled to leave England to avoid the army of reporters and photographers that follows her from one end of England to the other. The girl is a prominent figure in a divorce scandal, and the most talked about woman in England.

In Brittany, where she has taken refuge, Genora meets Peter Garsten, a tourist, who knows nothing of her identity.

Get the Proofs for LALLEY Superiority

"Getting right down to brass tacks" as the saying goes—Why is the LALLEY superior?

That's what you want to know, have a right to know and should know. It's good business.

We are not going to attempt to explain in detail here the reasons for LALLEY superiority, we prefer to merely give you a few of the outstanding LALLEY features, then, ask you to come in and get the figures and the proofs.

The LALLEY LIGHT will furnish sufficient power, direct, without the aid of the battery, to save you 20% expense.

—It does not need a large, expensive battery.

—It is built for exactness and precision — to last and give dependable service for years.

—It runs as quietly and smoothly as a sewing machine.

—It is the simplest plant made, having only three moving parts.

—It can be assembled and disassembled with a wrench and a screw driver in a short time.

—It has been used by thousands of owners over a period of 10 years. These are mere statements, of course, but they should arouse your interest sufficiently to come in and have us prove them.

That's what we are here for — to explain the LALLEY LIGHT and demonstrate its superiorities. Come in at your earliest convenience.

Be Sure — See the LALLEY First
