FOREIGN CONTROL FOR BANKS AND INDUSTRIES

BERLIN, March 10.—Carl D. Grant, U. P. Staff Correspondent.—Austrian industry and banking is being foreignized. American, French, English, Swiss and other foreign capital are taking large interest therein. This is due to a lesser extent, of German industry.

In Austria, the process of foreignizing business takes three forms, according to Vienna advices, namely: 1—conversion of a foreign branch of a concern into the main office and leaving the Austrian office as a branch; the capital in the main office being converted into that of the main office; 2—allowing concern to remain Austrian, but with the majority of its stock held by outsiders; 3—infusion of foreign capital to increase the capital stock, but without giving the foreigner the controlling hand.

An instance of the first kind is that of the Laenderbank which has been converted into a French establishment leaving its Vienna office as "branch-est."

In the second category falls the Italian purchases in the Alpine iron concern. While the concern remains nominally Austrian—thus its shares in the country—the stock is controlled by Italians. In this connection, it is interesting to note that the purchases thus made prevented the impending socialization of the concern.

As the third procedure, which has occurred in many instances, it may be cited that the Guaranty Trust Company and another American concern made investments of 40,000,000 crowns in the Oesterreichische Kreditanstalt, one of the oldest banks in Austria, which found itself compelled to increase its stock extensively.

In Germany, one of the most notable cases of capital increase, in which foreign capital participated, is that of the German General Electric company. It is understood that the American General Electric was the outfit presenting the bulk of the new capital sought some months ago, but it was distinctly stipulated that the German corporation would remain German and avoid foreign control of the majority stock.

WOMEN'S CLUB ROOM WILL BE FURNISHED

Club women of Pendleton will have charge of the furnishing of the women's club room at the county library as the result of the action of council last night in turning over to them a fund of $25 which has been in the coffers of the city for some time. This fund is known as the Library Ball fund and was raised by the ladies of the city for the purpose for which it is to be used. A petition was presented last night asking that this fund be turned over to a committee from the women's clubs. Mrs. P. E. Hayden is chairman of the committee.

HARVEY NAMED AMBASSADOR WASHINGTON, March 10.—(U. P.)—Colonel George Harvey has been named ambassador to London. Harding offered Harvey the post and he accepted. The official announcement of the appointment will not be made until the other diplomatic posts are filled.

AUTO SHOW SIDELIGHTS

It took some little work to put the Sturgis-Storle exhibit in working order at the show. A concrete base, was necessary in the Laidley Light display and concrete was poured three feet below the floor of Happy Canyon.

The Simpson Tire Service Co. has delivered its exhibit at the show with a few timely remarks which are displayed in poster form. Among the sentiments offered are the following: "If the boot leggers did not use motor cars we would die of thirst before they reached us." "Ninety per cent of the cars used are for business purposes. Of course this depends upon what you call business."

C. A. McGee, of the Howard Auto Co., of San Francisco, George W. Dean, manager of the Howard Auto Co., Portland branch, C. J. Thirkill, territory manager for the company, and Mr. Penton, of the Portland branch, are visitors at the Automobile Show. Mr. Penton is here to demonstrate the Buick chassis which is a part of the Oregon Motor display. Mr. Penton is in charge of the Buick demonstration at San Francisco, Portland, Astoria and makes talks at the show.

Harry W. Lyon, formerly of this city, now represents the Cook & Gill Co. of Portland. Fellow distributors should get tired while friend Husband Mr. Lyon is here for the Pendleton Automobile Show, having arrived in the city this morning.

It is a far cry from the Haynes of 1911 to the little old horseless carriage effect first manufactured by the company. The modern Haynes cars at the show have a likeness of the first model emblazoned on the radiator cap, with the words, "America's First Car."

Among the out-of-town visitors at the show are J. K. Leander, manager of the Studebaker Corporation of Portland, and J. M. Ross, of the Studebaker agency in Walla Walla.

Dean Wright, ever since there was a Pendleton Automobile Show, has decorated Happy Canyon for the event. This year he added among many new features, a drop ceiling which gives the big hall a home-like appearance, and a lattice-work canopy over the entrance to Happy Canyon.

It stands a bit aloof from the rest of the Automobile Show, this little wonder of 1912 visitors, as if something all things modern. The short, square-shaped, old-fashioned hood and the carriage lights on either side bear but little resemblance to the cars of 1921, but on the radiator of the sturdy veteran of the automobile world is emblazoned that single, all-expressive word, "FORD." The machine, which has given good service for eight years to its owner, Carl Weisert, still shines with the brilliancy of a new car and from the appearance of the motor will doubtless get over the road with the same agility.

Any questions to ask? See Miss Anna Giddard of the Eastern Oregon Auto club. She has a desk and a full supply of information on tap to answer all questions concerning the show, the roads to the show and most everything else. The desk is over near the musicians' stand.

Twelve dealers are showing 18 makes of cars. Twenty-one exhibitors and 54 spaces. A regular auto show, this.

Plenty of entertainment is being provided by the entertainment committee. Sawyer's orchestra will play every afternoon and evening and as an added attraction a male quartet will sing.

There are lots of large easy chairs, tables and stands scattered around the building. No reason why the wife should get tired while friend Husband investigates every model.

A tractor is not supposed to be a thing of beauty but rather one of homely sturdiness but not so the Fordson tractor, displayed at the right of the main entrance. The sturdy features are retained but a liberal supply of white enamel and gilt is making the Fordson one of the beauty spots of the show. The tractor is snow white, the seat, hubs and other portions of gilt and it has black solid rubber tires. It's really a show car, and as such has won the title of "White Mule."

Truck chassis and motors with portions cut out of them to enable the visitors to see all the inside workings are some of the features of the show. Nothing is hidden and just what makes the car go is very easily demonstrated by this means.

The first car sold at the 1921 Automobile Show was a Dodge Brothers roadster, purchased by G. B. Morrison. It was sold by Rex Ellis of the Ellis-Schiller Co. The sale occurred early this morning.

Local dealers believe that the Automobile show which opened today will prove a stimulus for the sale of machines. Many prospective buyers, they state, have evidenced an inclination to "wait until the Show" to decide. Fair weather always increases sales, say dealers, and they are thankful for the sunshine today.

AUTO EXHIBITS

four, is a part of the Oldsmobile exhibit. Other cars shown are an Oldsmobile Eight, finished in dark red, a green touring car and a three-quarter ton truck.

In the Oregon Motor Garage exhibit is a seven passenger Cadillac, finished in dark blue with a touch of white for accent. A Buick Sedan, comfortably upholstered, a Buick cutaway chassis with electric motor, and a five passenger Buick touring car, complete the showing. While the new Buick hood is familiar in Pendleton, it is new at the show this year as the cars last year did not have this feature.

Coupe Is Attractive. A Dodge coupe, placed in the show by the Ellis-Schiller Co., is attractive. The machine is upholstered in soft velvet with a black and gray stripe. The windows have the patent adjuster and are equipped with silk shades. A screen business car, a five passenger touring car and a neat roadster are other cars found in the Ellis-Schiller exhibit.

The Western Auto Co. has a Dort touring car, and a Dort cutaway chassis in its display. Another car shown by the company is the handsome Cole, finished in navy blue with wire wheels.

Haynes Is Shown. A C. Stevens Co. shows a Winton Six seven passenger car in the ever-popular tan shade. Haynes sport model, six cylinder car, and a snappy red speedster. The speedster is a decided novelty in color and style.

The new Franklin hood is the keynote of the Pendleton Auto company's display. The hood, interchangeable on any car, gives the 1921 model an entirely new line. The new hood is shown on a luxurious Franklin sedan, and on a practical touring car, while the old hood is shown on a five passenger Franklin with wire wheels.

Studebaker Shows. Studebaker, in the Special Six, Light Six and Big Six, are offered for inspection by Wallace Brothers. The cars, of up-to-the-minute design, are all cord-tire equipped.

Pendleton's newest automobile firm, Beck & Haynes, shows a Reo five passenger car. The machine, a six cylinder touring, is a stunning model in olive green, with trimmings of black. Charles Haynes drove the machine from Portland for the show.

Besides the numbers by Sawyer's orchestra, a genuine negro quartet will sing at tonight's show. The colored songsters are said to be masters in the art of melody.

SEEK RECALL OF PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSIONERS

SALEM, March 10.—(A. P.)—Articles of incorporation of the Portland committee for the recall of the public service commissioners were delivered today to corporation commissioner Handley and referred to the attorney general before filing.

The move was started by Robert S. Duncan following the telephone rate increase.

CLARA SMITH HANSON'S

at an Astoria hotel after the two were reported to have decided to part because of a reconciliation between Hanson and his wife. Hanson had reached the Zenith of his power politically, and had made a name almost unmentioned in the history of development of the new Northwest. Charges that Hanson at the beginning of the alleged romance paid his nephew to marry the girl so he might carry the name of Hanson were denied by the nephew.

The alleged shooting occurred the evening of November 21—Sunday. Hanson walked into the lobby of the hotel and announced that he had accidentally shot himself while cleaning a pistol he had intended to take with him on a hunting trip to West Texas and Montana. He walked unaided to Hardy Santarum and afterwards Frank Ketch, his business manager and chief lieutenant, issued a formal statement saying the wound was accidentally self-inflicted.

Late the next day Russell Brown, county attorney of Carter County, issued a warrant charging Clara Smith Hanson with assault with intent to kill Hanson and the woman he had. She was traced to California City, Old Mexico. From there she conducted negotiations with relatives, who, on the advice of attorneys, arranged for her surrender. She surrendered to Sheriff Buck Garrett of Carter County, Oklahoma, a few days before Christmas. She was released on bail.

Her attorneys announced soon after the returned that she would plead self-

Sorrow Is Reward of Ungodly.

ARDMORE, Okla., March 10.—(By Clara Hanson. Copyrighted by the United Press.)—"Sorrow is the sad reward and philosophy of the ungodly. Those whose que is 'eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we may die' for their part in life, think they are happy, but it is only the deepest sorrow and a guise of temporary bliss. This is usually realized when a tragic crash comes—and then it is too late.

This lesson I want the readers of the United Press to draw from the strange case of Clara Smith, who was a clerk in a country store ten years ago and now with fervent ardor wishes she was still back in humble Salem. Back in the days of my early youth, a man came into my life—but I will skip over my story—Go, world, know I only too well. It is enough for you to know that I am today charged with murder and fighting hard for my freedom. Why? Because I was unable to overcome a man's indomitable will, and because I was steeped in the philosophy of the ungodly! This carefree, reckless but poisoned philosophy comes disguised, but the mockery of it all comes home to me now. Son Attends Trial.

Jake L. Hanson, Jr., came to the trial of the girl who killed his father. Young Hanson stood against the wall throughout the morning. His eyes never turned from the defendant. He is twenty years old.

Widow Attends Opening of Trial.

Mrs. Jake L. Hanson sat across the table late today from the woman she accuses of breaking up her home and murdering her husband. Mrs. Hanson's entrance in the court was the dramatic sensation of the first day of the trial of Clara Hanson on a charge of slaying Jake Hanson. She was accompanied by her son, Jake Junior, and daughter, Olive Bell, aged 11 years. A steaming silence fell over the court as Mrs. Hanson entered.

'BIG SIX' BROTHERS HAVE SECOND REUNION

STELLACOOM, Wash., March 10.—(A. P.)—Meeting for the second time since they crossed the plains together as boys, the "big six" Mebane brothers have just celebrated a reunion here. The six brothers weigh 1507 pounds and are more than 28 years in combined height. They came across the plains 40 years ago, making the trip from Sioux City to Walla Walla, Wash., in three months and fourteen days. The "Big Six" well known in the Northwest are Dick, George, Bert, Charlie, Ben and Frank Mebane. They had eight sons in the world war and are the fathers of 15 living children.

28 YEARS AGO

(From the Daily East Oregonian, March 10, 1893.) R. A. Lowell is in Echo on business. T. D. Paige will leave tomorrow for Spokane on railroad and reservation business. Hon. J. Alexander has returned from a visit to Portland and Salem. He says the commissioners will be here next week to look over the proposed site for the new asylum. Antonio Yee, one of Umatilla county's big sheep raisers, is here from Butter Creek. He has lost only 29 sheep out of 10,000 head. He lately returned from San Francisco where he has been for the benefit of his health. A. D. Stillman is in Portland on business.
