JAPAN TACKLES POOR OLD JOHN BARLEYCORN

TOKYO, March 10.—John Barleycorn, or whatever may be the Japanese equivalent of this gentleman, is about to be tackled by the fair ladies of Nippon. The Modern True Women's Association, an organization of Japanese women, has decided to take steps to have drinking of sake and other intoxicants reduced. They have decided to approach their goal by gradual steps, and the first petition, which they are about to present to the Diet, calls for temperance and not prohibition, which would not have the slightest chance of success at present. The petition contains the following provisions:
Intoxicants should not be sold except between 4 p. m. and 9 a. m.
Intoxicants should not be sold to minors.
More than three (a small measure) must not be sold to one person at one time.
The sale of alcohol should be prohibited in parliamentary buildings.
The sale of intoxicants should be prohibited on election days.

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it's just a common ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream, gently massaged with the finger tips around the corners of the eyes and mouth.

If you have not yet tried this simple, easy way to beauty get a small quantity today and let your face be the judge. Your favorite toilet goods counter can supply you.
