PHOENIX HOSIERY

There are a good many things to be considered. Some people emphasize fit, for in order to look trim and neat, hose must fit to perfection and retain its shape. Others look first to the wearing qualities of a stocking. Others to material and finish, price, etc. When all these advantages are combined in one line, as in Phoenix Hosiery, that is as near to stocking perfection as human skill can make it. Hose at the new price.

The Fruits of Winking.
A good story against himself is being told by a Nonconformist divine of the severe old school, who, however, is not without a sense of humor. He was traveling north. Just before he got to York he opened the carriage window, with the result that he got a piece of grit in his eye. He rubbed it and did all the usual things, but it still troubled him, and every now and again he had involuntarily to wink. When he got to York he went into the buffet and asked for a glass of milk. This being served, he gulped it down, and then realizing that something was wrong, he said to the barmaid, "That wasn't milk, was it?"
"No, sir, rum and milk."

D. A. R. CONVENTION.
Of interest to local members of the Daughters of the American Revolution is the announcement that the state D. A. R. convention, to be held in Salem on Friday and Saturday, promises to be the largest convention yet held by the Oregon chapter. It is uncertain whether or not a Umatilla chapter representative will attend. Chemeketa chapter of Salem will be the hostess for the state and the sessions will be held in the statehouse. Four distinct lines of work are to be emphasized as follows: Historical research of each chapter in their local district; old trails of Oregon, of which Mrs. Mary Barlow Wilkins has made a complete study and will discuss; Americanization by Mrs. Ester Allen James, who is a sister of Mrs. George Hartman of this city, home teachers' bill, and how it affects local conditions. Four distinguished speakers will be heard at the convention. Mrs. Della Thompson Lites of Cooperstown, N. Y., editor of "Today's Housewife"; Mrs. W. D. Field, regent of the Paul Revere chapter of Boston, Mass.; Gov. Olcott who will feature his talk by a display of some rare old relics; Dean Elizabeth Fox of the University of Oregon, who will discuss international relations. One of the most delightful features of the convention will be a remarkable collection of colored lantern slides of Sargent's pictures of the sailing and landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, giving the story from their departure from Holland to the landing in America.

NEW STEAM CAR TO MAKE ITS PREMIER APPEARANCE SOON

George Coats Announces Plans For Five Passenger Car to Be Sold for $1000 Retail.

Rumors, current at the New York and Chicago shows that an import enterprise in steam motors is soon to be launched, have been definitely confirmed by George A. Coats, capitalist and representative of large steam interests, at 1213 Merchants Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Coats announces that he will manufacture and market a five-passenger six-cylinder steam touring car of 110-inch wheelbase, with electric lighting and steering, to retail at about $1000.

On the same chassis he will also build a commercial speed wagon for all light delivery purposes.

Automobile Leaders Interested
The Coats construction embodies several distinct advances which have interested leading steam engineers. For many months, the Coats experimental shop has been the terminal of pilgrimages by steam specialists from all parts of the country. Engineers and other representatives of the gasoline car industry are also joining the visitors in increasing number. Every week seen deputations from distant points at the headquarters in Indianapolis.

The operating models have been taken down and put together many times. Not a feature has escaped critical examination. The judgement of visitors, many of whom have gone on record, is that Mr. Coats has the conception that will "put steam over"—that it will win the popularity that its advocates have long insisted it rightfully deserves.

In this non-technical news article, no attempt is made to examine the details as the engineers are doing. The boiler is of the combination five-and-water-tube type, so arranged that it will go under a hood of any shape. The top and bottom welding of the tubes, equalizing expansion, reveals advances especially remarked upon by the experts.

The insulated steam line leads directly to the rear axle with divided flow to each half of the axle.

It is in this axle that engineers and axmen alike find one of the most fascinating advances in the Coats car—the direct application of the steam to the wheels, absolutely eliminating the feared differential.

The rear axle is the engine—or the engine is the rear axle—whichever way you choose to consider it.

It is engine, axle and differential function, all in one—the engine in its housing being just about the size of the ordinary rear axle gear case. It is without doubt the most compact engine in automotive practice. The housing of each half of the axle carries three fixed cylinders, set at 120 degrees apart or one-third the circle. These cylinders are exactly like those of the automobile engine—with poppet valves, pistons and connecting rods. The bore is 2 1/4 inches, stroke 3 inches. The three connecting rods in each half are pivoted to a crank pin integral with the drive shaft of each wheel. At a speed of 40 miles an hour, the engine is running at the very low speed of 600 revolutions per minute. It will be observed that an overlapping stroke is obtained. Before one
