Kob & Dill in "The High Cost of Loving" will be at the Oregon Theatre on March 18. That assortment should cause a mild stampede at the box office when the rest sale opens as the annual visit of the two stars is always looked forward to by the theatre goers, but no doubt this year as they have revived their biggest success the business will be record breaking.

Great pains have been taken to make this their best effort in the production this and it is safe to say that there will be no better scenic effects offered the local patrons for a long while to come as the best artists in the country have been employed to turn out masterpieces in their lines.

The company which contains all of the principal fun makers that played the "High Cost of Loving" before and many new faces have been added and new novelties injected throughout the action of the play.

A Symphonic Jazz orchestra is carried by the company and if you have not heard them, you have never heard real jazz as Mr. Jazz himself would have liked to have heard it played.

Passing It Around.

The Baby Vaino: Mine! Love me and I'll get it away from you.
