A DRAMA OF CONFLICTS

"The Valley of Tomorrow," which the Pastime Theatre is featuring as its big attraction this week, to run until Saturday has been aptly described as "a drama of conflicts." It is a gripping, vital and intensely human story of the soul-growth of a man who finds that the man he is obligated to kill is the very man who has saved his life, and that the girl he loves is the sister of the man through whom his own little sister was brought to the shame and dishonor that led to her death.

Marguerite De La Motte, the talented little actress who plays "Allie Lee" in "The U. P. Trail," the powerful Benj. B. Hampton photodrama, released by the W. W. Rodkinson Corporation, which comes to the Arcade Theatre today for three days is only seventeen years old. Her wonderful histrionic ability became evident after she had made but a few pictures. Indeed, before she became thoroughly used to applying screen make-up she spoke to find herself famous—"made" by a single picture. This was Benj. B. Hampton's photodrama in the Emerson House novel "The Saboteur," and her role was that of "Mary Warren," the blind heroine. Little Miss De La Motte brought to the delineation of this character a deep sympathy and understanding that placed her at once among the foremost of the younger generation of screen actresses.

Miss De La Motte's interpretation of "Allie Lee," the appealing little heroine who at last finds complete happiness within the safe harbor of "Warren Neale's" arms, is said to be even finer than her previous work.

DRESSMAKER MADE WELL

Followed a Neighbor's Advice and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vernon, Tex.—"For three years I suffered untold agony each month with pains in my sides. I found only temporary relief in doctor's medicine or anything else I took until my husband saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I mentioned it to a neighbor and she told me she had taken it with good results and advised me to try it. I was then in bed part of the time and my doctor said I would have to be operated on, but we decided to try the Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a dressmaker and am now able to go about my work and do my housework besides. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial as I am always glad to speak a word for your medicine."—Mrs. W. M. Stephens, 1109 N. Commerce St., Vernon, Texas.

Dressmakers when overworked are prone to such ailments and should profit by Mrs. Stephens' experience. Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., about your health. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HONEYMOONS DO A VARIETY OF THINGS

The announcement that Mary Pickford today in her latest United Artists production, "The Love Light," is of unusual interest to her thousands of local admirers, for several reasons, one of them being that the star, and her author and director, Frances Marion, obtained the idea for the story, a great deal of the furnishings and some of the players while each was honeymooning with her respective husband, in Italy.

Miss Pickford and Miss Marion being close chums, and Douglas Fairbanks and Frederick Thompson being fast friends, it was only natural that they should meet on the other side of the Atlantic and spend their honeymoons together, and the two gifted girls sat on the rocks overlooking the Mediterranean in Northern Italy and planned the story.

Another reason for the great interest aroused by this production is that it is Miss Pickford's first appearance in an emotional drama following her announced policy of attempting new things and creating new paths in photoplay stories. It will be recalled that some time ago Miss Pickford announced that not only for her own artistic advancement, but for the advancement of the entire motion picture industry, she would endeavor to get away from the conventional hackneyed stories and attempt to present life as it really is.

Despite the fact that "The U. P. Trail" is a massive production it is possessed of something more than mere physical bigness: It is just as great in theme as it is in production investiture. Dealing with the growth of our country, it shows America in the making, at a time when might was right and every man carried the law on his own hip.
