GIANTS LOOK BEST BET IN RACE FOR FLAG IN NATIONAL LEAGUE SAYS SPORTING AUTHORITY

NEW YORK, March 18.—(Henry L. Parrell, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)—Since 1915, when Jawn J. McGraw capped his third pennant in a row, no National League manager has headed a winner twice consecutively.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson can do a lot of things with ball players, but there is not enough around his Brooklyn club to justify the belief that he will break the precedent.

True, he has the same club, man for man, excepting Rube Marquard, that won the 1920 honors, but while he has stood pat on his team, other managers have been adding strength during the off season.

Picking winners on the diamond is just about as dependable as picking them on the turf—a hit once in a while is a good average.

The same Uncle Giffert Robinson probably was thinking of this recently when he said:

"You go ahead and dope out the pennant race, I prefer to play it."

However, in fifty per cent of the cases, baseball runs true to form. Last year the National League race went against the dope but the American League followed it almost to a line.

The National League, of course, can be divided into two groups, contenders and non-contenders.

Only three clubs at this early date appear to be in the first class—Brooklyn, New York and Pittsburgh.

Of that trio New York looks to be best with the Pirates second and the Robins third.

The Giants ought to win the pennant. If Goldie Rapp makes good for the infield and McGraw is able to land a more reliable outfielder than Benny Parrell, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)—Since 1915, when Jawn J. McGraw capped his third pennant in a row, no National League manager has headed a winner twice consecutively.

After a slump, until midsummer, with the pitchers out of condition and a fragile infield, the Giants chased the Robins clear to the wire last year.

The club is stronger this year, should start stronger and finish stronger.

Rabbit Maranville will make a pennant contender out of the Pittsburgh Pirates. George Gibson sacrificed some batting strength and some powerful outfield talent to get him but there is plenty left. The Pirates look awfully good for the race, but not enough to nose out the Giants.

Brooklyn has the best pitching staff in the major league. It may even be stronger with Heatter in the fold, but the club has no better than it was last year and everyone excepting the residents of Flatbush admit that the Ebbers crowd was rather lucky last year.

The Cincinnati Reds appear to be shot. Pat Moran wrecked his club to get rid of some disturbers. With a recruit, Bohne, on second base and the light-hitting Crane in right field, the club will not be as strong as it was last year. There may be better morale on the club with Reuther, King, Rath and Neale gone, but morale will not go it alone.

Johnny Evers has also been tearing down the Chicago Cubs to such an extent that his club is a mystery. However, any club under Evers must be figured. He brought the Giants out of the ditch last year and he "may be" a miracle man with the Bruins.

MIKE O'DOWD FAILS TO REGAIN LAURELS LOST TO J. WILSON

Middleweight Champ Retains Title When Judges Disagree and Referee Gives Decision

NEW YORK, March 18.—(A. P.)—Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, retained his title in a 15-round bout with Mike O'Dowd, former champion, at Madison Square Garden last night. The judges disagreed and Referee McAvoy of Brooklyn gave his decision in favor of Wilson.

The bout was rather disappointing from a fight standpoint, as each man seemed afraid of the other and O'Dowd only adopted his famous rugging tactics occasionally.

Wilson, who has the longer reach, was able to stand off or outpoint O'Dowd as long as the ex-champion was content to box or spar, but when O'Dowd stepped inside to fight in his usual rushing fashion, Wilson was the sufferer.

At least three times O'Dowd complained Wilson was hitting low with his left swing to the body. In the 13th round when their heads bumped blood spouted from a cut over O'Dowd's temple. During the last two rounds O'Dowd was bothered by this mishap.

There was heavy watering on the result. Wilson was a pronounced favorite in the betting during the day, the odds being quoted as 11 to 5 but when the men reached the ring the betting was largely at even money.

PEER OF PUGILISTS TOO SUPERSTITIOUS

Jack Dempsey, peer of pugilists of the present, is superstitious, as are most fighters.

At Mount Calvary cemetery in Portland, Ore., is the grave of that famous Jack Dempsey of the past, the "Nonpareil."

It was suggested to the world's heavyweight champion, who was visiting there recently that he visit the grave of the other Jack Dempsey, whose stout heart broke when Bob Fitzsimmons wrested from him the crown of fistiana.

Dempsey said no, he guessed he wouldn't visit the grave. Instead, he sent a wreath of flowers to be laid on the grave of the "Nonpareil."

"Superstitious," he was asked.

"Maybe I am," said Dempsey, "read the book."

Stanley Ketchel, best of middleweights, went to Portland and visited the "Nonpareil's" last resting place. Before he had a chance to fight again a bullet ended his spectacular career.

"Terrible Terry" McGovern was thought to be unbeatable in the light weight division. He visited the grave and straightaway lost the championship to Young Corbett.

Jim Jeffries and Frank Gotch, premier wrestler, touring the country together, stopped long enough in Portland to look up some easy money. Together they visited the grave.

Jeffries was beaten by Jack Johnson.

And last came Willard, mountain-hulk, taking the count at Toledo while the referee lifted the glove of victory of the present Jack Dempsey.

And this is why the champion will not visit the grave of the other Jack Dempsey who was known as the "Nonpareil."

The Hermiston cemetery. Mrs. McMartin crossed the plains with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cathcart in 1873 with six teams, taking six months to come from Indiana to the Umpqua valley. They passed through Umatilla county on the old Oregon trail crossing Butter Creek at the old Ewing crossing. The deceased spent the most of her life in Southern and Western Oregon and returned to Eastland Oregon 6 years ago to make her home with her niece, Mrs. W. H. Starr. Mrs. Starr is also a pioneer, having as a small child, crossed the isthmus with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cathcart in 1852. They settled around Roseburg when much of their trading had to be done in Portland which was then but a small port.

HUSBAND RETURNS; RESENTS PUBLICITY

SUTHERLIN, Ore., March 18.—Charles F. Reed, who suddenly departed from Sutherlin last Thursday night without stating his destination, greatly alarming his wife and resulting in her searching the city of Portland in an attempt to locate him, returned to Sutherlin on a late train Tuesday night. Reed says he went to Portland on business matters and there was no occasion for as much publicity as was given his temporary disappearance.

Elmer McElroy narrowly escaped a serious accident last Sunday when something went wrong with the steering gear of the car he was driving and landed him in the Maxwell ditch. The car was badly damaged but he escaped without injury.

Last Friday evening Miss Phyllis Dyer entertained a number of her school mates at her home in the suburbs. The evening was spent in games and music after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess's mother.

Last Friday the Hermiston high school seniors motored to Irrigon and spent the day looking over that country. A most enjoyable time was had by all.

The eighth grade baseball team will play the first game in the league with Umatilla here Friday.
