MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT COMPARES COUNTRIES

LONDON, March 19.—(A. P.)—Sir Harry Brittain, member of the British Parliament, who has just returned from a tour in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia, was much impressed by the contrast between the two former countries.

"The Austrian," he said to an interviewer, is willing to be spoon-fed at every angle. The German is pulling and in many cases has pulled himself together and the great machine is getting into full swing right across the country.

"It was in villages and small towns in Eastern Prussia and Bavaria, as well as in Berlin and everywhere that could not put down the feeling that this once great and powerful nation would be great and powerful again."
