Barr of the Commercial Association saying that the offer of Pendleton as an early training camp has been accepted. The club will have free use of the Round-Up grounds while here. It is believed the team will get here in time to start the season April 10. With the Moosejaw players in the city it will be necessary for them to have practice games. A picked local team may be made up, the Whitman team may be brought here for a mid week game or a select team may be picked from players in the irrigation league of this county.

Speeding Up Postal Work.
Desiring to speed up the service of the general delivery and stamp divisions by relieving them of a large amount of extra work, Postmaster Cronin has installed a new service window in the local office through which all parcels too large to go through the lock boxes will be passed. Also the C. O. D. parcels and all registered mail. The postmaster transferred one of the clerks from the finance division to have charge of this new window and Mr. Cronin will personally assume the work in the finance division formerly done by this clerk, as the department will not allow any additional help. The window is being changed in order to give faster and more efficient service to the patrons of the office.

The book on the Pendleton Round-Up, now being written by Charles Wellington Furlong, well known author, is to be in the hands of the publishers, G. F. Putnam Sons, by April 15, according to word received by the Round-Up board. The book is to contain 10,000 words and will contain 16 photographs of the big show. The book will deal with the origination conception and production of the great passion play of the West, and will be from the viewpoint of the outsider and the performer, as Mr. Furlong besides seeing the Round-Up many times, has been in the arena as a participant and once rode Sharker, the famous steer. Mr. Furlong is now at the Bohemian Club in San Francisco preparing the book for publication. The Round-Up board will take orders for the book, which will be sold for $1.75. Members of the board consider the publication of the story a great opportunity for advertisement of Pendleton and the Round-Up and are well pleased that an author of Mr. Furlong's standing will write the book.

The Botulinus Bug
Botulinus, the bug which put a crimp in the olive business for a couple of years, has been destroying some horses in Oregon, according to Dr. William Lyle, state veterinarian, who is returning from a trip into eastern Oregon. Horses were affected in Pendleton and Baker and some horses were lost at a sawmill near Klamath Falls. One owner lost about 15 animals. The infection is believed to be caused by the horses eating lupine beans. Lupine is the beautiful wild flower which is extensively used during the Portland rose festival for decorating automobiles during the floral parade. The blooms which are so pretty in the parade later turn into beans and these beans are supposed to have been inoculated by the botulinus bacilli. This particular bug has its home in the soil—this much has been discovered by scientists within the past few months. Several years ago the botulinus killed thousands of horses in Kansas and became known as the Kansas horse plague. Dr. Lyle developed the toxin which is being used against Mr. Botulinus and on one occasion some of this dope was rushed by airplane to save a man.—Oregonian.

Work Is Progressing

FRANCE AIMS TO REMAKE MAP OF MIDDLE EUROPE

ATHENS, March 22.—(U. P.)—That a new map of Middle Europe and the Balkans is in the making and bears the indelible marks of the Quar' Orsay is the widespread conviction of Greek statesmen here.

To most of Western Europe Greece carries indisputable evidence of pro-Germanism, a trait that in itself alone is sufficient to draw down the uncompromising hostility of France.

Since Constantine's return, French and British diplomats have had nothing to do with the new government, Serbian, Belgian, Portuguese and other nations dominated by the Allies have been non-committal. The Yugoslavs have actually been openly hostile. Rumania's attitude also has given the government here no little worry and embarrassment.

The attitude of the American Legation—one of the most influential Legations in Athens—has been that of "watchful waiting" or "benevolent neutrality."

The new political map of the Balkans, according to authoritative sources, calls for a reorganized "Little Entente." The first "Little Entente" was chiefly the work of Take Jonsco, Rumanian premier and foreign minister. It consisted of a so-called combination of Greece, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania. Greece favored it because it fortified her against future aggression on the part of Bulgaria and Turkey. Rumania figured that it would help her retain permanently the Dobruja and other territory wrestled from Bulgaria and Austria-Hungary. Yugoslavia, at that time engaged in discussions over Fiume and Dalmatia needed a moral force to impress Rome. Czechoslovakia wanted protection against a revitalized Hungary.

Having attained her ends, Yugoslavia was at first uninterested in the Little
