PERIOD PLAY PLANNED.

The trilled and be-ruffled attire of the ladies of 1890 will be worn by some members of the Current Literature Club who will form the cast for the play, "The Fugitive," to be given under club auspices at the county library auditorium on Friday afternoon.

The play, a satire on women's clubs, will be marked by a fidelity to detail in carrying out the costume of the 1890 period. Mrs. David B. Hill will wear the wedding gown of Mrs. Thomas Fitz Gerald, an imported French creation in a color known as "imperial straw." Mrs. Charles Bond will be attired in a gown of dark blue by which is the property of Mrs. Matthews. The dress is of brown silk and has a graceful train. A gown which has twenty-five yards of material in the skirt, and which is owned by Mrs. George Hartman Sr., and a chic black silk affair owned by Mrs. M. A. Wyrick, will also be worn in the play. There will be numerous Paisley shawls, and as a fitting background, the stage setting will be replete with what-looks, tidies and other fanciful furnishings of the nineteenth century.

Following the play, tea will be served in the club room and a silver donation will be collected for the benefit of the University of Oregon Women's building. The club has invited all Pendleton women for the afternoon, with a special invitation to members of Federated clubs.

JOHN BURROUGHS

Treasury clerk and a national bank examiner had netted him some savings, he bought a few acres at West Park on the Hudson, where among the loaded trellises of a vineyard he found "more pleasure than in the closets of greenbacks." There he renewed his emotional intercourse with Nature, building a real house overlooking the river—just above Poughkeepsie. When rural civilization pressed a little close about him, he built his "alabaster" cabin a mile or two back in the woods.

On his 154th birthday he said: "Growing old is a kind of letting go. The morning has its delight and its sweetenments, the noon has its triumphs and satisfactions, but there is a charm and tranquility and a spiritual life about the close of the day that belongs to neither."

Had Planned Birthday Celebration. Burroughs had planned to celebrate his 84th birthday with Henry Ford, H. S. Firestone and Thomas Edison on April 3 and was returning from the coast with this idea in mind. Born in Roxbury, N. Y., 1837, at 14 he began writing essays, at 19 he was a contributor to the Atlantic monthly. He graduated from Cooperstown seminary and taught school for nine years.

Wrote Numerous Books. It was the unconventional in writing and nature that appealed to him. In 1894 he made his famous attack on Earnest Seton Thomson and others naturalists, characterizing them as "nature fakers." His first book in 1867 was "Walt Whitman as a poet and a person." Since that time he has written numerous magazine articles and books, among the latter are "Camping and tramping with Roosevelt" and the "Summit of the Years."
