CHICAGO, April 5.—(A. P.)—Promises of a new expose in the baseball quarter when attorneys defending the eight Chicago White Sox players indicted with ten others for conspiracy in the alleged throwing of the 1919 world's series announced they had uncovered a 'real scandal' in which men hitherto not mentioned had won more than $200,000.

The statements were made by the attorneys when they made motion before Judge McDonald for reduction in bail for Eddie Cleotte, Claude Williams, Buck Weaver, Swede Risberg, Oscar Felsch, Fred McMullin and Joe Jackson, White Sox players, from $45,000 each to $7,500, but announced they would permit no reduction in the cases of the alleged throwers.

New Law Reduces Fire Losses

NEW JERSEY, the latest State to enact a fire prevention education law, is already feeling the salutary influence of this new study in the schools, although the law went into effect only six months ago.

According to H. R. Heydon, Secretary of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, the law already has resulted in a reduction in the number of fires, although it requires only one hour of study each month.

"A new spirit is being shown in community neatness as a result of the lessons taught," says the New Jersey official. "For example, in one community where children had formerly scattered waste paper on the streets, the nuisance has been entirely obliterated through the teachings in the schoolrooms, that this constitutes a fire hazard. This gave the local Chamber of Commerce a new incentive and the result has been an actual reduction in the number of fires."

GOVERNMENT ENGINEER INVENTS NOVEL MACHINE

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, April 5.—(A. P.)—Herwood Peterson, a chief engineer in the government telegraph service, has invented a wire and cable system by which it is possible to transmit a picture or a message in original handwriting over a practically unlimited distance. The device was recently publicly tested here between two 600-mile points and was reported successful.

Contrary to the present telegraph system, Mr. Peterson uses an alternating electric current, allowing a strictly synchronous work of the sending and the receiving apparatus, a higher speed, and an enormous saving of erecting costs. The system, it is claimed, also makes it possible to transmit double the number of words compared with any other telegraph system now used and it operates automatically from the moment the teletype picture or drawing is received by the operator until it is received at the place of delivery. No new wires or cables are necessary.

The manuscript to be transferred is placed on a metallic cylinder—something resembling an original wax photograph cylinder—covered with a photographic film and exposed to a strong light. The manuscript is copied on the cylinder film, developed and chromographically etched into the metal. The cylinder is then placed on the sending apparatus to which is transmitted an electric current going to the receiving apparatus. When the cylinder rotates a needle moves on it, touching every point on the cylinder. Whenever it touches the copied letters of the manuscript it causes a short circuit which is transmitted to the re-
