Cole McElroy, who was in Pendleton last night with his jazz orchestra, formerly lived in Salem and is the son of a well known pioneer family. His father, E. B. McElroy, was state superintendent of public instruction from the years 1882 to 1896.

John Adams and E. Larkin, both of La Grande were among the visitors to Pendleton Friday. Cool weather prevails there, they report.

Dr. J. D. Plamondon of Pendleton is registered with his old friend Phil

Metschan at the Imperial. Dillon Plamondon and Phil Metschan were schoolmates at the Whitsett university and both of them used to caughe the hearts of the fair females to flutter whenever they appeared in the ofing.—Oregon Journal.

Louis F. Anderson, defendant in the irrigation case now being heard in the Pendleton term of the federal court, is a noted Greek scholar and was for 29 years professor of Greek at Whitman College, Walla Walla. Mr. Anderson owns a beautiful country place near Walla Walla and it is a 10 acre tract of this property which is now in litigation.

"The first time I was in Pendleton there was only one house here and it was a stage station near where the Hotel Pendleton now stands," says Henry Scott, who is in town today from his home near Milton. It was in 1866 that Mr. Scott made his first trip here and in those days he says a man could ride from Walla Walla to Pendleton and to Umatilla without seeing a fence. During Captain Martin's day as sheriff Mr. Scott was a deputy in the east end of the county. He was also a deputy marshal. During the Indian war of 1878 he was in a militia company at Milton.
