WHEAT MARKET IS DOWN 2 CENTS TODAY

The Chicago wheat market dropped slightly today. May options closed at $1.13, or two and three quarter cents under yesterday's close, while July wheat closed at $1.07, which is two and a quarter cents under yesterday's closing price.

Locally the market is said to be weak today with 85 cents as about representing the price. There is some selling being done. As estimated by H. W. Collins there is a differential of 43 cents between the Pendleton price and the Chicago price, it taking that amount to cover freight and warehouse charges. On that basis the present speculative wheat market shows the July price at less than 50 cents for Pendleton delivery.

Following are the Overbeck & Cook company prices today.

Wheat—Renewed liquidation induced this time by British labor disruption overwhelmed buying power and carried prices to new low levels for the season. Past week it appears as though the principal selling has been by country holders of cash and futures. Today for the first time country offerings to arrive were reported smaller and the various cash markets showed indications of firmness with local premiums firm and bids at the rail advanced one cent. Up to the close the seaboard confirmed only 300,000 bushels taken, but said the demand was quite active and anticipated that sales for the past few days have been much larger than reported. It might truly be said that the market has as yet shown no indications of turning but we confidently believe that the end of this wave of liquidation is near at hand.

GREATER PENDLETON EXTOLLED BY MANY AT CLUB GATHERING

An exemplification of Pendleton spirit which promises to add to the present fame of the city was shown last night when members of the Pendleton Commercial Association, at their regular meeting, gave endorsement to the program presented by the board of managers, made suggestions for further activities, pledged themselves to do everything possible to assist the association and listened to a number of inspiring talks.

The meeting which was a combination business and smoker session was held at the large room at the Elks Temple, and practically every seat was filled.

Lands Pendleton Spirit
Col. Charles Wellington Furlong was one of the speakers of the evening, and after dwelling on the impressions he formed of Pendleton as an outsider in the great Round-Up he also lauded the spirit that Pendleton displays in other movements.

"This spirit of your city means a great deal," the speaker declared. "It is the essence of success, the thing that makes men accomplish, and the hardest thing to kill. It was the failure on the part of Germany to take into consideration the human equation that caused her failure in the late war. She neglected to give consideration to the spirit of her enemies.

"I never have seen a city with such a spirit of fair play and the square deal as Pendleton has shown."

The speaker also dwelt on the desirability of bearing in mind constantly the idea of the "city beautiful" in all municipal improvements and moves for greater things. A suggestion that met with warm approval from the audience was that when time has caused the Round-Up to become a thing of the past, it should be succeeded by a great historical museum here in Pendleton. Work on such a project should not be postponed, the speaker suggested.

Reports On Power Work
A report of the efforts being made to secure action on the Umatilla Rapids project was made to the meeting by Judge Gilbert W. Phelps. Engineers are now gathering data which can be submitted to Oregon representatives in Congress, he said.

The information about the project is being so organized that action may later be secured on the work either as a power site or under the head of irrigation, according to the speaker. The benefits that would accrue to Pendleton with the completion of this big project were indicated by the judge in an enthusiastic manner. He also called attention to the progress that has been made on the McKay creek reservoir in which the Commercial Association has played a vital part.

Praises Sisters
Dr. Frank Boyden called attention of the association to the activities of the Sisters of St. Francis which have resulted in a decision to increase the hospital facilities and room of St. Anthony's hospital by the construction of a new wing, costing $200,000. The membership of the association is 595 with more in prospect, the report of Secretary C. L. Barr disclosed.

Miners Reject Offer
Notice of the strike vote was given out shortly after 11 a. m. when the executives of the triple alliance went into secret session. Negotiations with the miners broke down yesterday when the miners leaders flatly rejected the offer of Premier Lloyd-George.
