RESISTED UGLY EFFigy

"It looks like a first-class scenario," was Lowell Sherman's critical verdict when he surveyed the dummy made to represent his own handsome person and to play an important, even if ignominious role in "The New York Idea." Alice Brady's latest picture, Sherman is a brusque favorite of no mean importance, and is known as a "misery" dresser, such as the stage and off. So to have such a ridiculous dummy made to represent him was perhaps rather surprising, but he had to stand it because in the play he is the unhappy husband of the capricious heroine, who divorces him on an impulse, and in the honor guest, immediately after receiving her decree, at a luncheon given by a group of giddy divorcees to welcome her into ranks of the emancipated. The dummy of the husband she has just divorced is placed next to her seat at the Moundsville, W. Va.—"I had taken doctor's medicine for nearly two years because my periods were irregular, came every two weeks, and I would suffer with bearing-down pains. A lady told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how much good it had done her daughter, so I took it and now I am regular every month and have no pain at all. I recommend your medicine to everyone and you may publish my testimonial, hoping that the Vegetable Compound does some other girl the good it has done me."—Mrs. GEORGE TEGARDEN, 515 Third Street, Moundsville, W. How many young girls suffer as Mrs. Tegarden did and do not know where to turn for advice or help. They often are obliged to earn their living by toiling day in and day out no matter how hard the pain they have to bear. Every girl who suffers in this way should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and if she does not get prompt relief write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts, about her health. Such letters are held in strict confidence.

ARCADIE SUNDAY AND MONDAY

"IF I WERE KING," WITH FARNUM COMING SOON

A picture that is said to include William Farnum's greatest screen effort will be shown at the Arcade Theatre next Sunday. It is "If I Were King," from the great stage success and novel by Justin Huntly McCarthy and is a William Fox production.

Those who follow the stage will remember that E. H. Sothern created the role of Francis Villon in this play, and scored a great success.

As soon as the picture was finished Mr. Fox sent a copy of it to England, where it was shown to Justin Huntly McCarthy. The author was enthusiastic.

"It is wonderful," he declared. "I never believed motion pictures could make a play so real. And Mr. Farnum is splendid in the part of Villon. During the recitation of the poem 'If I Were King' before Louis, I could almost believe I was hearing Mr. Farnum speak. I extend my congratulations to Mr. Fox to Mr. Farnum and to Mr. Edwards, who directed the picture. The handling of the crowds is thrilling."

THEIR EVIL MINDS BRANDED HER A SAGE HEN

In certain parts of the Old West, the term "Sage Hen" was applied to strange women of doubtful character. In 1880 there thrived, as long as gold was in the hills and cattle on the open range, a little town of a hundred or two, called Silver Creek.

Like many other Western communities of that time, Silver Creek was ruled by a Vigilance Committee. The little town had the usual combination of hotel, saloon and gambling room, but, strange to say, no dance hall.

The citizens of Silver Creek considered themselves very righteous individuals and when a woman with a baby came to live in a lonely cabin on the outskirts of the town, held herself aloof from the other women and took no one into her confidence, their "pure minds" saw evil in her and called her a "Sage Hen."

In "The Sage Hen," showing at the Arcade Theatre today, Edgar Lewis presents what many will consider this producer-director's greatest picture. It is Harry Sother's story of a woman's sacrifice for her greatest possession—her home, her honor and her child—Mr. Lewis has a subject worthy of his ability to paint, vivid, virile, powerful dramas.

PASTIME SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Edith Roberts returns to the screen in "White Youth" after four months vacation spent in New York and on the Atlantic Coast. Her first picture since "The Adorable Savage" shows next Sunday and Monday at the Pastime Theatre. It was directed by Norman Dawn, who guided her in the previous unprecedented hit, and who is noted for his artistry of touch and his colorful detail.

"White Youth" is a story of modern Louisiana, a girl just from school, a safe-cracker within the law, a wonderfully-stocked wine cellar, and a priceless cigarette holder presented to an old Creole by the Empress Eugenie.

This is Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. millionaire reporter, who has set the new fashion in monograms. The idea is to make the design of implements of your trade. Cornelius, a writer, uses the monogram above—the "C" made of a quill pen and the "V" of pencil. C—V—what? Now if you have pen to be Carpenter Len Vorn, the seal on the left below is suggested. The scissors and tape design should please Xenia Sma. of the ribbons counter.

Mixed well and served by Director Dawn, the result is said to be an ultra-modern romance with a picturesque setting in the glass. The story is by those master story writers and playwrights, Clara Beranger and Forrest Halsey. The scenario is by George C. Hull.

Miss Roberts appears as the granddaughter of a proud old Creole general. She has been raised in a school and knows little of the world until her grandfathers writes that he will send for her in a few days to meet the man he has selected as her husband.

Norman Dawn spent several weeks in the South with his cameraman and technical director securing atmospheric photographs and the necessary data for producing many of the historic old spots in Louisiana where the scenes are laid.

The cast includes Arnold Greig, Alfred Hollingsworth, Thomas Jefferson and Hattie Peters.

THE CRYING NEED.

The standardization of the golf ball does not seem to be meeting with the favor that was doubtless hoped for by the man who invented it. What is really needed at the present juncture is a standardization of lost golf balls, something that will limit the number of balls one can lose in a day. At present the great majority of us who play golf have not arrived at that golfing Nirvana where we can be sure of playing even nine holes without getting a ball off into the long grass somewhere. It is bad enough to be confronted with the prospect of playing golf barefooted in order to save shoe leather, but to save up money enough to buy a golf ball for Satur-

SHE WANTED A DIVORCE—QUICK! "What grounds?" of course was a natural question for the judge to ask. Cynthia Karslake was stumped for a minute. And then she remembered that "John" had a habit of stewing his shaving things about her boudoir in a very untidy manner. And so a divorce was easy—so easy that it wasn't any fun at all. Is divorce a failure? That question will arise in your mind when you see beautiful ALICE BRADY in "THE NEW YORK IDEA"—A pungent satire on modern married life.
