WHEAT TAKES DECIDED DROP IN MARKET TODAY

Wheat.

Open High Low Close May 11.20 11.30 11.25 11.26 July 1.07 1.07 1.04 1.05 Wheat.—The market was weak from the start and showed only feeble response to bullish news items. The outstanding feature was the absence of outside buying power rather than any conspicuous selling. The weakness in Winnipeg wheat, which was accompanied by reports of heavy offerings from the country at lower prices, exerted an influence on sentiment. Cash wheat market was weak and from 4 to 7-cents lower with local spot premiums reduced one to two cents. Weather and crop conditions reported generally favorable with complaints few considering the recent unfavorable weather. Although local interests claimed some export business had been done, the seaboard reported a lack of foreign demand. It is apparent at this moment that some new development of constructive sort will be necessary to stimulate buying power and enhance values.
