The government to date has distributed $101,569.62 to 24,530 wool growers. Most of the excess profits originated in the territory east of the Mississippi river, where small sheep flocks are somewhat of a side line for farmers. Big producers in the west were easily accounted for. The government thus is up against the job of paying the money out in amounts ranging from 30 cents upwards to $5. Also, it has been discovered that while 3,600 country buyers took out proper licenses and came under regulation, 1,360 storekeepers, bankers and others bought small lots of wool, but didn't handle enough to acquaint themselves of the requirements. The balance of the half million is likely to lay in the treasury indefinitely as a consequence.

INDIANS WILL MAKE TRIP TO WASHINGTON, D. C., ON LAND ALLOTMENT CASE

Indians of the Walla Walla and Cayuse tribes are not in favor of the allotment of land to mixed bloods and their disapproval of the system now in effect will be conveyed to federal officials in Washington, D. C., by Jim Kanine, of the Walla Walla, and Captain Sumpkin, of the Cayuses, who leaves tonight for a now-vacant with the white men. Accompanying the two will be Albert Minthorn, a graduate of Carlisle, who will act as interpreter.

The Indians will ask also that 7,200 acres of land in the Kamela region, in the southeastern corner of Umatilla county, formerly owned by the Indians but ceded to the government 30 years ago be restored to the tribes. The land is known as the Johnson Creek property. Other matters will also be discussed.

Both Kanine and Sumpkin have visited Washington several times as delegates and both are prominent Indians, Captain Sumpkin being a cousin of the late Yum Sumpkin. Minthorn has also visited the national capital in other years as an interpreter.

HE COULD ALSO HAVE SENT THE AX BY MAIL IF THE BUYER WISHED

A customer went into a store to buy an ax and he found the price of the ax he wanted was $2.50.

"I can get one at a mail order house for $2 he told the merchant."

"I can sell you one for $2 came the reply. The customer paid over the $2 and waited for the ax.

"It will take about three weeks" replied the merchant with a smile thinking the customer would desire the usual out of town buyers delay.

This story was told at the Forum Luncheon today by J. R. Raley.

FOR AFTERNOON

Every woman has occasion to use a dark silk frock in her spring and summer wardrobe. The one shown is made of heavy navy blue silk crepe with Bertha effect collar and the lower skirt faced underneath with carmine color satin, which shows in circles as illustrated. These circles are first hemstitched and when cut through the hemstitching a pinstriped circle results, leaving an opening through which the red satin underneath shows.
