PARIS ENJOYS SUNSHINE IN BUS AND TRAMWAYS

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER. (United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PARIS, May 2.—Parisian business men, laborers and shop girls prefer to ride home from work amidst sunshine and pure air—in other words, in omnibuses and tramways—than descend into the gloom and foul odors of the subways.
Transportation statistics furnished the United Press by the Paris municipal bureau show that underground railroads lost 49,000,000 passengers during 1920 alone. A large proportion of these shifted to the omnibuses, despite the fact that the buses charge higher fares.

Surface means of transport are crowding underground lines increasingly and steadily in Paris. Last year 650,000,000 rode in tramways and 150,000,000 in omnibuses, as compared to a total of 550,000,000 in the two subway systems, the Metro and the Nord Sud.
And Paris' remarkable street car and omnibus lines are still behind what they were before the war. A number of pre-war routes have not been replaced, and there is lack of cars and buses on the lines which are operating.

Officials attribute the popularity of the buses both to the fact that they are speedier and more direct and to the more pleasant conditions of travel. There is no question of better advertising or competition, because all lines in Paris are owned by the city.
Fares have doubled, both surface and underground, since the end of the war. Subways now charge 50 centimes for second tickets and 50 for first class. Omnibus fares (short rides) average 25 to 50 centimes while tramways range from 15 to 25 centimes.
Both street railways and subways were operated at heavy loss until January, 1921, the deficits running from 20 to 40 per cent. Owing to the slump of 20 per cent in the price of coal, however, executives hope to make the ledgers nearly balance this year.

It would not be accurate, however, to pretend that surface lines are "out-performing" underground railroads or threaten the latter with extinction.
Paris has the finest and most extensive surface railway system of any city in Europe. It embraces about 200 kilometers of track as compared to the subways total of only 112 kilometers. The cars are airy and roomy and there is far less congestion during busy hours than in most cities of such less size.
Paris' omnibus system represents a route of about 150 kilometers, covered by approximately 1,600 buses.
The street railways reach far out into the suburbs, while both subways and omnibuses stop at the city ways. Important extensions of both the latter, however, are contemplated as soon as the dismantling of the fortifications is completed. This will open up new sections for flat-building purposes, and relieve the apartment famine.

Parisian omnibuses are one story. In appearance they are a cross between a street car and an old-fashioned prairie schooner. The compartment is divided into first and second class sections, the former being equipped with upholstered leather seats.
They stop at pre-arranged stopping points. During rush hours passengers are required to line up in advance, the first to arrive being the first on. The question of who came first is settled

PORTLAND MAN IS A FIRM BELIEVER

Altizer Makes Seventeen Pound Gain by Hiking Tanlac—Health Restored.

"Tanlac has made a believer of me, for I have picked up seventeen pounds by taking it," said J. P. Altizer, 223 Hall street, Portland.
"About two years ago I was taken down with erysipelas and was in bed for over a month. It left me with no appetite and my stomach was all out of order and I began to fall off in weight. When I ate anything it would sour or my stomach and I would blast all up and get short of breath. I was troubled a lot with heartburn and dizziness. My nerves finally broke down and I became so restless that I could hardly sleep. I was just about all in and so weak that each morning I didn't know whether I could hold out through the day or not.
"Well, I hadn't been taking Tanlac four days before I felt a great relief, and now I don't believe I ever felt better in my life. I eat like a lumber jack, am not troubled with nervousness or dizziness and sleep like a baby. I am back to my normal weight and, knowing what I do about Tanlac, I am more than glad to tell others about it."

by numbered coupons, attached in series on a nearby lamp post for each passenger to grab as he steps up. When the bus comes along, the conductor calls for the lowest number first, then the next, etc. Then nobody else gets on until someone alights.
Although no street cars run on the Grand Boulevards, Paris' great central artery, omnibuses by the hundred lumber from the Madeleine to the Bastille.
