NEWS OF FARM AND RANGE

CHECK OF STATIONS TO BE MADE ON TOUR BY COUNTY AGENTS

Experiment Work of Interest to Farmers and Livestock Men to be Investigated.

Steers can be finished at half the cost per pound by the use of ensilage. This fact has been determined at the Union station in Union county.

Every week after April 15 that summer fallow in the Columbia Basin is left unplowed, reduces the yield of the following crop of wheat an average of one bushel per acre for each week of delay. This fact has been determined beyond question by the Sherman county experiment station at More.

Does it pay to chop alfalfa for steers in Eastern Oregon?

Does it pay to build shelter for wintering lambs in Eastern Oregon?

Does it pay to harrow fall wheat in the spring?

Does it pay to grow green crops to plow under on the light irrigated soils of Eastern Oregon's irrigated districts?

Definite conclusions on these questions also have been reached on the different branch experiment stations in Eastern Oregon.

The changing economic situation bringing about serious conditions in Eastern Oregon is causing an unprecedented demand for fundamental facts in connection with agricultural practice in this part of the state.

In order that county agents of Eastern Oregon may have first hand knowledge of these facts to pass on to the many farmers asking information of them, a few days in the early part of the week of May 16th have been set aside for the purpose of visiting different stations.

Assembling at La Grande, Monday, May 16, county agents accompanied by Professors Potter and Hyslop of the Oregon Agricultural college, will visit the Union station where extensive feeding tests are being carried on to determine the value of different kinds of silage, the value of chopping hay and other feeding practices and wintering methods. At Union many variety tests of forage crops are also in progress. Results at Union are in general applicable over more than half the area of Eastern Oregon.

At Hermiston methods of handling irrigated soils will be studied.

At More, in Sherman county, several results have established certain fundamental facts in connection with wheat varieties and summer fallow harrowing methods which are applicable in most parts of Eastern Oregon where wheat is grown, according to dry land practices. Two days will be passed in Sherman county.

Experimenters Help—Further evidence of community service as carried on by the agricultural department of the Union high school is shown by experiments now under way. Several different poisons, and fertilizer combinations are being used on wire-worms. These are applied in varying amounts and on different crops. Some eight or ten imported pasture grasses are being given a trial on several different types of local soils. Two new varieties of field corn are being given a trial, with the idea of using them for silo corn if they are adapted to local conditions. Beans are being tried with yellow dent corn for use in the silo. As a successful crop for summer feeding, a combination of field-peas, soy-beans, and corn are being tried together.

Oregon-Montana Rig Visible at Winnett

The Oregon-Montana Oil & Gas Co. will drill on the western end of the Flatwillow structure. A standard Texas rig is now being built on section 20-14-24 and they expect to spud in by May 16th. Drilling will be done by Stewart & Stewart, who have a contract to drill to 2,500 feet if commercial production is not secured at a lesser depth.

Productive sands in the Oregon-Montana well are first expected at about 1,200 feet, and with a guaranteed drilling depth of 2,500 feet, this hole will be watched with much interest by all oil men inasmuch as it will penetrate all sands to the quadrant, and will be a complete test of the structure, which has been passed upon by competent geologists and is believed by experienced oil men to offer exceptional possibilities for a large field. Incidentally, this rig is visible from Winnett, and will probably be the first objective to visitors to the Winnett fields. Stewart & Stewart are competent and experienced drillers, having operated in Wyoming, Oklahoma and Texas fields.

The Oregon-Montana Oil & Gas Co. is financed almost entirely by Oregon capital. The company owns 340 acres in fee simple, and 100 per cent of production goes to the investors, each investor receiving a conveyance of interest by warranty deed, similar to a royalty conveyance, this method positively assuring each and every investor the receipt of his pro rata share of production.

The Flatwillow anticline begins in section 30-14-25, and extends in an easterly direction to about the center of township 14-29, where it merges with the Cat creek anticline. The Oregon-Montana prospect lies on the apex of this anticline in a domal structure known locally as the Elk creek dome, and 2,500 feet of drilling guarantees a complete and thorough test. Our lots are fifty dollars each and our Pendleton Office is at Dupuis Cigar Store.—Adv.

Some Encouragement — A news story from Salt Lake City to the effect that the holders of a 100,000 wool pool have refused $200,000 and three-fourths cents a pound offered for their wool is encouraging to Unatilla com-
