EARLY CITIZENS, CANNIBALS

CORVALLIE, Ore., May 10 .- (A. P. -That an ancient race of canalbals in habited Oragon before the Indian was the conclusion drawn by Prof. John B. Hoerner, of Oregon Agricuitural College, after examining relies excavated from prehistoric mounds three miles west of Tanzent, Ore. The ancients were buried on their sides or in a sitting position in a hed of charcoal four feet deep and encased with clay with charcoal over them. said Prof. Hoemer to a class of studthe mounds. "Sacrifices were offered to the idols these people worshipped. and human flesh and bones were put used on the long journey. This goes to prove that some of them were cannibals and not Indians.
