Heat Storm at Sea Shown in William Farnum Picture

One of the most thrilling sights possible on the screen is the sinking of a ship in a storm—even if the storm is "made to order." But there are storms—and storms. Those who were concerned in the making of the storm scene in "The Scuttlers," which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre today declare they got the thrill of their lives.

Even William Farnum, the popular William Fox star, who has been in many thrilling scenes, says this scene surely made his red blood run fast. And the cameraman who photographed the picture are willing to sign a statement that they want no more thrills of this calibre.

The action took place outside of San Francisco on board a 250-foot ship, taken over by the Fox company for the purpose. J. Gordon Edwards was directing the picture. The day was rather mean and threatening, but this gave the grey light necessary for the scenes. Mr. Edwards intended to pump the stern from the ocean in the customary motion picture way; but the vessel had hardly pushed its way beyond the three-mile limit when rain began to fall, and a high wind dashed the waves over the ship. At first Mr. Edwards, as he balanced himself on the rolling deck, thought it would be well to return to port.

"Just the kind of weather we want," Farnum insisted. "Put an umbrella over the camera, Gordon—and this ought to be corking stuff."

So a shelter was made for the camera, and the storm scenes taken. Little rehearsal was needed. The real action was there. The company didn't try in act. What the members endeavored to do was to keep on their feet. Their faces, too, expressed the right emotion. One man became too realistic. He got seasick and had to be taken out of the line of the camera.

In "The Scuttlers" are other remarkable scenes, embodied in a peculiarly thrilling story of romance and adventure. According to report, Farnum, in this picture, is seen at his best.

PASTIME TODAY

Remember the delightfully funny vaudeville team of Crimmins and Gore—Dan Crimmins and Rosa Gore? They are playing the principal comedy character roles in support of Frank Mayo in "Colorado," which is now at the Pastime Theatre. The story gives Mayo his greatest opportunity for dramatic punch. The scenes are laid in the mining country of Colorado and a flooded gold mine furnishes one of the big thrills of the drama.

GOLD PAID FOR BY SOULS

"The Money-Changers," the all-star Benjamin B. Hampton-Pathe feature at the Arcade Theatre today is not a crook play, nor a drama of high finance, nor a Chinese play, but it is a study drolly combining all three in a powerful story of New York that takes in alike the glittering splendor of the richest city's highest society and the colorful, mysterious, drug laden atmosphere of the Oriental underworld.

Written for the screen by Mr. Hampton and Upton Sinclair and based on the theme of Mr. Sinclair's famous novel "The Money-Changers," the story revolves about a man greedy for money. A respected member of society and president of a big drug company, it was not known that he was also the guiding spirit of a ring of drug traffickers. At the cost of the souls of men and women he grew rich with money that bought an illicit drug. The plot of "The Money-Changers" unmask the hypocrite and brings about a turning point toward happiness in three romances.

ALTA SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Olive Thomas has appeared in a great variety of roles during her screen career but it is doubtful if any of her preceding characterizations excel or even equal her present portrayal of Mary, in the "noboboy" in "Everybody's Sweetheart," which is now appearing at the Alta theatre for a two day run.

In spite of Mary's position, or lack of it she is a constant and living emblem of optimism. No matter what happens, Mary keeps her chin up and smiles and when in the final part of the picture the dreams of this modern "Cinderella" come true, every person in the audience smiles both with and at Mary.

"Everybody's Sweetheart" is not simply a story of saccharine snuff and smiles but a well balanced dramatic tale of how the spirit of youth and inherent cheerfulness conquers all obstacles in reaching its goal.

CAFFEIN CONSUMED IN COFFEE IS HARMLESS

BOSTON, May 21.—(A. P.)—Caffein in the moderate quantities consumed by the average coffee drinker is declared to be a safe stimulant without harmful after-effects in a preliminary report of a scientific investigation conducted at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since June, 1920. The investigators directed by Professor Samuel C. Prescott, head of the department of biology and public health who makes this announcement of the first findings of their research, are now at work to isolate and identify the other constituents of the coffee bean, especially those which determine the flavor and aroma, preliminary to studying the best methods of brewing beverage coffee.

"The effect of caffein is, known," says the report. "For the great majority of normal individuals it is a mild stimulant of the heart, increases power to do muscular work, increases concentration of mental effort, and therefore the power to do more brain work. It is not followed, except in excessive doses by undesirable after effects. A few people are especially sensitive to coffee, and for them its use is not to be recommended. In these cases the abnormality is in the individual rather than in any inherent poisonous or deleterious property of the caffein itself.

"Caffein can be taken by the vast majority of healthy adults without subsequent narcotic or depressant effect, provided it is used in moderation and not abused. Excessive amounts incite temporary disturbances in the central nervous system but these do not cause any permanent injury. It is equally true that other normally harmless substances such as salt, sugar or condiments when used in excess may also produce untoward symptoms which are often severe. Our studies lead us to entire agreement with the results stated by Hodgkinson that when taken with food in moderate amount, caffein is not in the least deleterious."
