Promises of the New Generation

By Margaret Steel Heald.

"Mrs. Scott promised to furnish sandwiches for the Parish tea this afternoon. It's time to commence serving and she hasn't sent them; they say she's gone motoring with friends—what shall we do?"

"I hurried across the street to make sandwiches of what available material I could find in the house, and I reflected upon Matilda Scott and her kind. What, after all, was the reason that not only she but many other women could not be depended upon to keep promises and carry their legitimate share of responsibility? As I looked out of the window the answer came.

Sally Brown was passing with her mother. Her shill entreaty reached my ears.

"Mamma, let me have another candy!"

"No, Sally, you promised you'd not ask for another when I let you have the last one."

"Just one more, please, Mamma!"

"No."

"Just one more, I'll not ask for another one, I promise."

"Well—just one more, then."

"Goody! One—or two."

How easily Sally slid out of that promise!

It seemed a trivial thing, perhaps, and yet such small promises and their keeping from the foundation for conscientious girlhood and beyond, womanhood and manhood. If children are to possess a sense of responsibility they must be capable of responding to obligations, they must be trustworthy; and there is but one beginning offered for the development of these qualities, namely, the everyday occurrences in the life of the little child. It is a matter for eternal vigilance.

My mind slipped back to a call upon a young neighbor. It had not been a satisfactory call, due to the constant and unnecessary interruptions of the little daughter of the family.

"Sarah," her distressed mother pleaded, "you promised not to interrupt when Mother had friends."

"Yes, but Mother, just get it for me this time."

"No, I must not be disturbed."

Sarah swung on her mother's chair buzzed in her ear.

"Sarah!"

"Mother, just this time! Excuse me a moment Mrs. — while I get it for her."

Then I recall a supper party where the hostess excused herself at least six times during the meal to ascend to the nursery in answer to the demands of her small son; explaining, "He promised he wouldn't call, but I think he must want something."

ASK CHILDREN TO GIVE OLD TOYS TO NEAR EAST

State Superintendent J. A. Churchill is sending out a letter to the superintendents of the state announcing that the Near East Relief organization is asking the children of the state to send their discarded toys to the Near East organization in each county in order that they may be forwarded to the relief ship that is to leave the Pacific coast in June.

There is vital need for something that will bring pleasure to the children of the Near East. Thousands of orphan children, after passing through unimpeachable experiences, needs toys to brighten up their cheerless lives.

"Children of Oregon are asked to collect their used toys, such as blocks, paper dolls, kindergarden material, stuffed dolls, roller skates etc. and forward them to the Near East organization in the different counties.

A copy of the letter has been received at the office of the county superintendent of schools here.
