

IRISH WOMAN DESCRIBES BRITISH RAID AND RUIN OF HOME AND CLOTHES

Soldiers Dance About Room in Corsets and Suit of Pajamas Belonging to Dead Soldier.

LIMERICK, Ireland, May 24.—(A. P.)—Miss Una Daly has given a graphic description of a British and Tan raid on an Irish home in an affidavit she has just filed here. Miss Daly witnessed the destruction of the furnishings of her house and describes the special delight which, she says, "the British army seemed to take in their work."

Miss Daly declared that the officer in command informed her that the official reprisal was carried out because the owner of the house, Miss Madge Daly, Una's sister, failed to notify the British authorities of an Irish ambush made about a mile away from their home on the previous night.

"An officer told us that they were going to burn the house and that we had 15 minutes to clear out," said Una Daly. We learned that we could take what family photographs, addresses, etc., that we could get in that time. Most of the time was spent in helping my aunt down from her room at the top of the house.

Then we were ordered to the back garden while the building was searched by the military and the police, who were armed with sledge hammers and implements of destruction, set to work to break every piece of furniture in the house.

The conduct of Sergeant Horan was particularly painful to us. He danced about in a silk hat belonging to my uncle, the late John Daly. The memory of this uncle who reared me and my orphan sisters and brothers is very dear to us and all his effects were held as treasures.

"Not content with wounding our feelings, this Sergeant Horan poured a torrent of vile abuse on me and my sister and mother while all these child-vicious officers and soldiers of the glorious British army seemed to enjoy the joke. I can say that I did not see a single act of courtesy or manliness from any individual of all that big force."

"The officers of the British army seemed to take a special delight in their work. One took a fur coat and collar from my sister and then threw it into the fire, another picked up a pair of new shoes and did the same. One soldier paraded at the window in a lady's corset, another decked himself in a suit of pajamas which belonged to my dead brother."

"For two and one-half hours we were forced to listen to the blows that destroyed our home, to see the windows being smashed out and the broken furniture, glass, bedding, clothes, china, etc., pelleted out. These were taken to the road where a huge bonfire was made and the remnants were consumed. Black and Tan went to the house and broke every plant in it with mallets. The gas brackets in the house were bent and torn down, the brass fittings in the hall torn out and all fixtures broken and damaged.

"We had a lively home. 11 rooms beautifully furnished and when the British wreckers of our—dead—had a few pictures of our—dead—"

"An obnoxious officer accompanied by another came to us in the garden during the process of destruction and asked for Miss Madge Daly. When told that she was in Dublin, he proceeded to read from a paper that as Miss Madge Daly did not give notice to the military of an ambush which took place in John Street on the previous night, all contents of the house were to be destroyed by military order."

"Now, our house is over a mile from the place where this supposed ambush took place, with the river between. My sister Madge was in Dublin at the time, yet our house is destroyed because she did not give notice of what she could not possibly have knowledge of, even supposing that she was despicable enough to turn spy and traitor to her own."

COURTS ARE FORBIDDEN TO TRY DAMAGE SUITS

DUBLIN, May 24.—(A. P.)—All efforts to collect damages resulting from acts of the British military authorities have been stopped in the areas in Ireland now under martial law by the issuance of an order forbidding the courts to hear any such claims against the military authorities unless they have permission of the commander-in-chief.

Four cases in which the plaintiffs claimed damages against the Crown forces for territory which had been destroyed by them were brought up before the King's Bench here but without avail.

General Sir Nevil Macready, the British commander in Ireland, sent an affidavit to the court asserting that a state of war existed in the area in question and that the defendant was acting under his orders for the purpose of suppressing rebellion and re-

Lives to See the Prescription He Wrote in 1892 the Worlds Most Popular Laxative Remedy

DR. W. B. CALDWELL TODAY Born Shelbyville, Mo., March 27, 1829 Began the manufacture of his famous prescription in 1892

Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, long past Biblical old age, but hale and hearty—Still sees patients daily—Wonderful achievement of a "country doctor."

WHEN I started to practice medicine, back in 1875, there were no pills or tablets or salt waters for the relief of constipation, and no artificial remedies made from coal tar.

The prescription for constipation that I used early in my practice, and which I put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid remedy, and I have never had reason to change it. I intended it for women, children and elderly people, and these need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

I am gratified to say that under successful management my prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that over eight million bottles were sold by druggists last year proves that it has won the confidence of mothers whose chief interest is the health of their children.

It is particularly pleasing to me to know that the biggest half of those eight million bottles were bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for grownups. The price of a bottle holding 50 average treatments is sixty cents; such a bottle will last a family several months.

I have never made a secret of what is in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. These ingredients are endorsed in the U. S.

Pharmacopoeia. I consider Syrup Pepsin today in the serious 82nd year of my age, as I did in 1892, the best remedy a family can have in the house for the safe relief of constipation and its accompanying ills, such as headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and I believe if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

establishing law and order.

The Lord Chief Justice ruled that the court had no power to dismiss the action but granted a stay of proceedings for "the duration of the war."

This will bar all actions to recover damages for military acts in the martial law areas as it is expected that the usual act of indemnity will be passed by parliament when the "state of war" ends.

The Irish county courts previously have awarded a total of about 5,570,000 for malicious injury to persons and property but only a small proportion of this has been paid.

The taxpayers are liable under the law for all this sum but the local authorities refuse to make any attempt to collect it.

DAWSON, May 14.—The fur catch in the MacPherson district is reported to be exceptionally heavy this year. Marten has been very plentiful and the Indians are paid $45 a skin. Mink is worth $19, muskrat $2.50 and weasels $2.00.

'NECESSITY OF TRUE VISION' SUBJECT OF LOCAL MINISTER'S TALK

Rev. Gressman of the Christian Church Spoke to an Interested Congregation.

(Synopsis of sermon by W. A. Gressman, at the First Christian Church, Sunday evening, on the subject, "The Necessity of a True Vision." Text—Prov. 29:18, "Where there is no vision, the people perish.") A true vision is necessary in the building of character. The ideals which constitute such vision must appeal to the will. The climatic aim in all of Jesus' teachings was to move the will to act. For example, "He who heareth these words of Mine and doeth them," "Whoever will, may come." "If any man willeth to do His will." The hearers of Demosthenes had their will moved to action when after hearing him they declared, "Let us go fight Philip." Likewise, the true aim of every sermon is to move the will of the hearer to act upon the message presented.

A true vision is necessary also, in enriching life. Selfishness results from a lack of vision. Things near are magnified to paramount importance when we lack a comprehensive view. For example, if I say that baptism is the most important of New Testament teachings, I am going beyond what the Scriptures warrant, as much so as if I minimized it by declaring it less important than any other command. Ezekiel's statement, "I sat where they sat," is one full of meaning. Let the teacher sit where the pupil sits and see how imperfectly she understands the pupil—far truly a pupil need not become a teacher in order to know what a good teacher is. Likewise, let the parent sit where the child is in order to see how the child's view may connect best with the parent's idea. In like spirit, the preacher should sit where his congregation sits and listen to his own sermon and see how he likes it.

Because Jesus knew all men and what was in man, He could sit where Nicodemus sat and direct him into better thinking. He could sit with the woman at Jacob's well and enable her to see herself as God saw her and draw from her heart the confession that He was the Messiah. He could sit with the sinner in the multitude and from the viewpoint of the sinner lead his mind up to the mind of Christ. Such is the true art of teaching today. Where leaders do not see what oth-

Healthy Mother Merry Children Happy Home

TO maintain a happy home the housewife must keep in good health. Her duties are many and various, and it seems as if every other member of the family depended very much on her.

"Where is my hat?" cries the boy.

"What did you do with my coat?" asks the daughter.

"I can't find any handkerchiefs," yells the husband.

The housewife is usually the advisor and general manager of the family.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women to maintain a happy home by keeping them in good health.

Bloomington, Ill.—"I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a wonderful sight of good. I was never very strong and female trouble kept me weak so that I had no interest for my housework. I had such a back-ache I could not cook a meal or clean up a room without raging with pain. I would rub my back with alcohol and it would ease for a few hours, but after I had taken three bottles of Vegetable Compound my aches began to gradually leave me. Now I am as strong and healthy as any woman and I give my thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my health."—Mrs. J. A. McQUITTY, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

Dante, So. Dakota.—"I would have paid any price for relief from my pains and cramps every month until I could hardly stand it and could not do my work at all at that time and often had to go to bed. I went to a physician, but he did not do me much good and said I would have to have an operation. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspaper and thought I would give it a trial. Now I feel lots better and don't have to give up and go to bed, and can do all my work. You may use these facts as a testimonial, and I will answer with pleasure all letters I receive, and you may be sure I will praise your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. ARTHUR J. KADE, Box 71, Dante, South Dakota.
