

People Here and There

Pendleton merchants certainly show a splendid public spirit when they give such a show as the carnival, according to the opinion expressed by Donald M. Robey, graduate of O. A. C. whose home is at Eugene. Mr. Robey stopped in Pendleton Saturday night on his way to Spokane where he will attend the Modern Automobile School during the summer months. He was in charge of the mechanical arts work in the high school at Twin Falls, Idaho, last year but has accepted a position at Lindsey, Calif., for the coming year.

Conductor T. M. Boyd who has a run from Portland to Pendleton was accompanied down Saturday evening by Mrs. Boyd who wanted to see the carnival.

Master Floyd Williams has returned to his home at La Grande after visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Hattie McCree.

E. B. Aldrich was called to Portland Saturday night on account of the illness of his father, James H. Aldrich.

John Henderson is spending the week end at Walla Walla with his grandmother.

Manuel Friedly left this afternoon for Portland on a business mission.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY OFFICES AND OFFICERS

One Perfect Spelling Grade
So far as the check of grades made by pupils of the eighth grade in the tests for graduation have been made, only one boy secured a perfect rating on the spelling examination. The list of words was exceptionally difficult. A Weston lad has the only perfect grade, according to the records so far as the listing has been completed.

Get Marriage Licenses.
Marriage licenses were issued Friday afternoon at the office of the county clerk to Harvey E. Bender, laundryman, and Grace Waggoner, both of Pendleton; to Marion W. Martin, a farmer, and Sarah Vaughn, both of Ukiah.

THOUGHTFUL MOOD

From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well!

For him no minstrel raptures swell:
High though his title, proud though his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentrated all in self,
Living shall forfeit fair renown,
And doubly dying shall go down
To the vile dust, from whence he springs,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

The Purpose of America
War is useless, if we draw no lesson from it. The greatest lesson is that of cooperation. Consecration to a high ideal or to a worthy cause.

He who says, or infers, that those Americans who placed their all on the altar of their country, to obey its slightest and every command, went for the sordid purpose of protecting just the material possessions of their land, that there was not in the minds and in the heart of those men and Americans generally a bigger ideal—the sustaining of the principles of liberty, equality and justice in the world, which we openly and avowedly enlisted for—not only belittles the Great Spirit of America, but traduces our very purpose. He gives the lie to the very pledge of our faith.

He defames the unselfish crusader spirit, which not only spread Americanism abroad, but made us respected, revered and even sainted as a nation by the helpless and little peoples of the old world.

What Was Fought
It is true we were fighting Germany, but we were fighting something greater, stronger; we were fighting the things Germany stood for! We were fighting an organized state of mind, imperialism, the old order of Europe again. We fought not just because it was an American menace, but because it was a world menace and still is. We can no longer be isolated.

This same force of greed and power alien or domestic, may make its inroads in any land, and when established, and concentrated enough it becomes that same organized state of mind. It is this and its propaganda we have to fight. It is the subtle enemies which make for war. It is this great idea which John McRae felt when speaking for the illustrious dead he concolled:

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Civilization's Torch
The torch we hold today is the torch of civilization—thrice flamed with Liberty, Light and Justice.

You men came back—only part of some of you came back. Many of us came back whole in body, but we could not gather up the strings again somehow. This is but a natural reaction of war through the cessation of hostilities. The purpose even seems to have been taken away, and nothing left in its place. The true civilian patriot, at home, who backed us loyally, and did his bit, felt it too. But what got under our skin was the fellow who made use of your absence, who made use of the war, who made use of his country, and the very blood of his own countrymen to swell his coffers and grow fat—the war profiteer; then there was the individual who did it solely to save his own hide, the slacker; last names about which too much odium cannot ever be thrown. These are indeed men without a country. They have sold their birthright for a mess of pottage.

Then, too, there was the feeling on the part of many toward the man or the woman who had kept the home fires burning, but seemed all too soon to forget. Some did. But in most of these cases they did not. They just did not tell you see. But they are the many who did and who backed you loyally all the hours.

Impersonal Service Needed
But the point I want to make is this—Men of the American Legion. You went in the cause of your country and your ideals. You went impersonally.

TROUTDALE COUPLE FULLY CONVINCED

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Johnson Are Always Telling Their Friends About Good Tanlac Did Them

"It is hard to tell who thinks most of Tanlac, my wife or myself," said C. L. Johnson, a farmer living on R. F. D. No. 1, Box 72, Troutdale, Ore.

"For nearly two years I had trouble with my stomach and kidneys. Gas seemed to stay on my stomach all the time, and often I felt like a deep breath would kill me. My back was weak and lame and hurt so it was all I could do to get up out of a chair. I suffered from headaches and dizziness and many a time could hardly walk a step. My sleep was all broken up at night and it took all my grit and nerve to stay on my job during the day.

"But four bottles of Tanlac put me back in as fine health as I ever enjoyed in my life. My appetite has come back and what I eat agrees with me. My kidneys and back don't bother me any more and those headaches and dizzy spells have all gone. I sleep well and am putting in full time at work every day.

"My wife was troubled with chronic indigestion and she suffered with sick headaches and complained of being all run down and tired out. Tanlac has done her just as much good as it has me, and now she says she is feeling better than she has in a long time. We both think the world of Tanlac and are all the time telling our friends about it."

The money which would accrue to its sinking funds at a rate which undoubtedly would be higher than the bond rate. In other words, the state might actually, and in some cases it undoubtedly would make more interest on the bonds than its cost.

Ex-Service Men Inactive.
Ex-service men in Pendleton and Umatilla county are not actively engaged in working for the measure. The state department of the American Legion has held meetings over the state in which the provisions of the measure have been explained, but locally, very little action has been taken by members of either the legion or by ex-service men.

"Whether the ex-service men have an opportunity to buy their own homes or farms on loans from the state will depend on the action the people themselves take," Perry L. Idleman, commander of the Pendleton Post No. 22, American Legion said.

"From a business point of view, the bill strikes me as a mighty good one, both for the best interest of the state, and as a mark of the willingness of Oregon to act to the ex-service man."

"Come along, former soldier, sailor or marine and accept our long time loan to assist you in getting the home you have come to want since your return from the service. The state won't give you anything, unless you take the cash feature of the bill, but you can have a loan if you'll give a first mortgage securing it, and then of course, you must pay your share of the taxes on this property."

Organizations Favor Bill.
Comparatively few people have ever realized fully just what the measure means, and this fact undoubtedly has caused some of the silence that prevails relative to the measure. Members of the Commercial Association listened to an explanation recently made by Harold Warner at a weekly luncheon, and a motion was passed without a single dissenting vote pledging support of the organization to the success of the measure. The Women's Club and the W. C. T. U. have also given the measure their support.

The Resolution.
Following is the resolution adopted by the Pendleton Commercial Association:

Recognizing the heroic sacrifices of our soldiers, sailors and marines who offered themselves in the defense of our country;

Recognizing the difficult problem of readjustment to the economic life of the country which they met upon their return from long months of service that took them from homes, family and positions;

Recognizing, then, the hardships they faced by reason of unequal losses and sacrifices imposed upon their

Speculators Handicapped.
Fear that the provisions of the bill would be taken advantage of by speculators who would buy property from ex-service men and profit by the low rate of interest and the long time feature of the loan is expressly prohibited by the bill which provides that if an ex-service man sells property on which the state has a loan, the purchaser of the property must immediately repay to the state 40 per cent of the unpaid part of the loan, and on the remaining 60 per cent he has only five years in which to settle in full. That would enable the state to reloan
