FISHING TRIP TALK

Those fishin' jaunts we used to take were more than fishin' trips. It seems to me they brought to us our best companions.

An' whether we had luck or not, was fishin' good or bad, we found delight an' pleasure in the good old talks we had.

We went to catch some fish, of course, but always night an' day we'd come to know each other in a bigger, broader way.

I mind one time we sat out there an' never got a bite.

An' yet before we knew it, it was comin' on to night.

We'd simply talked the day away, discussin' various things.

Religion, an' the ways of men, an' European kings.

The purposes of birth an' death, jest layin' ourselves bare.

The way we never would at home, or maybe wouldn't dare.

THE VALUE OF PLAY

RECOGNITION of the need of recreation for growing children in Pendleton during vacation time has caused the board of education to provide a program that will insure plenty of clean amusement for the youngsters during the long summer days. Under the plan that has been worked out children will gather under instructors six days a week for the avowed purpose of having fun and learning to play.

While an innovation for Pendleton, the plan is not a new one, and the fact that the practice of teaching children to enjoy themselves under competent instructors in an atmosphere that is free from taint has extended even to our smaller cities is an indication of the grasping of a big truth by the whole people. And that truth is that we must play. We must keep as a precious possession the ability to "play the game" which is natural to the child.

The provision for the children does not necessarily mean that the fathers and mothers are to play less, either. As a matter of fact, figures supplied by the firms that sell sporting goods indicate that individuals are equipping themselves as never before to play golf, and tennis, and to fish and hunt and play other games. That tendency is much more healthful than a record of big attendance at baseball games, because it shows that the individual is bent on taking a hand in the fun himself. And when everyone enters into the sport of the game, or games, and brushes the beads of perspiration from his own forehead, and trains his eye for the accuracy that must be his to win at play, then sport is in a fair way to give to society its greatest good. When men and women forget the more serious side of living, and deliberately place themselves in a world of make-believe and recreate themselves in a game, they are casting off some of the dross and rust that they have accumulated in the past. This business of constantly making new alignments of body and mind to meet the problems that press one for solution is the difference between success and failure.

To know how to play and get real pleasure out of it is a necessity that everybody must learn if his life is to be symmetrical. The kiddies of Pendleton are to be congratulated on the training that is to be theirs this summer, and the cooperation of parents will assist materially in making the venture the success it deserves to be.

GUESTS OF PENDLETON

DELEGATES of women's clubs from all over the state of Oregon are in Pendleton this week for the twenty-first annual convention of the Oregon Federation. The privilege of being the hostess to this group of women who represent a very vital force in the life of the commonwealth in which we live is one to which the city and its people are not insensible.

Club work by the women of the state and nation is coming into more and more importance as the fruits of its efforts are being harvested and the public sees the scope of its activities. There was a day, and it is not so far distant, when many of the proposals, particularly along civic and welfare lines, which were advocated by the women's organization were ignored or accepted with a shrug of indifference. The record that women have made has long ago earned for them the right of being accorded a place of importance in the life of the state, and in working and striving together in their organizations they have become conscious of a power which now assures them a courteous reception in whatever task they may enlist themselves.

Pendleton welcomes these guests and appreciates the honor of their presence.

With four young women planning to farm two sections of land in Canada "with their own hands," the old wail that we have lost the daring of the pioneer seems to be disputed. The women are nurses who saw service in the World War, and they probably are not of the type of some of our more sophisticated "farmerettes" who got into the Sunday supplements during the war.

While many a man is jealously guarding his "goat," Doug Fairbanks lets it be known from his California home that he would like to lose his ostrich.

Women Officials Are Re-elected

Miller, mayor; Mrs. Virginia Hatch and Mrs. Genevieve Van Yick, councilwomen.

OREGON WILL ACCEPT U. S. MEMORANDUM ON RECOGNITION QUESTION

This Will Develop Understanding That Will Prompt U. S. to Recognize Oregon Govt.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(A. L. Bradford, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)—President Oregon of Mexico, will accept the American memorandum on the question of recognition as a "basis for negotiations," it was declared here by advisers of the Mexican president.

Exchanges which are now expected to follow between the two governments will soon develop an understanding that will prompt the United States to recognize the Oregon government, it was also believed in these quarters.

The next move by Mexico, it is thought, will be a reply from Oregon to a communication or memorandum from Secretary Hughes, which was presented by George Sumnerlin, chief of the American embassy, at Mexico City. Observers think if this satisfactory, the American recognition may be extended fourthly.
