THE BUSINESS MAN AND THE BOY

A very angry business man
Discharged a boy the other day.
"Because," said he, "he seems to be too slow to do the work my way."
"I've told him twice what I expect of office boys who work for me. And how to walk and how to talk. And how to greet men courteously."
"I've told him just the way to stand. And what to do and what to say. But he persists and he insists in blundering from day to day."
"I cannot stand dull-witted brats. That will not grasp what is explained."
The man or boy that I employ Must very readily be trained."
It was a golf professional
Who tried to teach this business man Just how to turn his wrists and learn To hit the ball as golfers can.
He told him forty times and more
The way to hold and throw his club; In simple speech, the art he'd teach.

PEACE CAN BE HAD ONLY THROUGH FORCE

SIMULTANEOUS disarmament was advocated by Colonel Galbraith, commander of the American Legion, in a statement he had prepared shortly before his death. He denounced any plan to have America disarm as an "example other nations must emulate."
The Galbraith view is correct. It is the pronounced view of the secretary of war. That view is likewise held by Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy. It is evidently the view of President Harding. It is the only tenable view for practical men to take.
Until peace is assured the only course for the United States is to go on with military preparations, let the cost be what it may. The only way peace may be assured, save through armament by each nation is through international action. We had a chance to aid such a move by uniting with the League of Nations. That chance is still open. It has been made known very clearly that the league covenant can be amended in most any form this country desires. So there is no occasion for holding back on the fake assumption American rights would be endangered by joining the league.

We could not assure peace even by "simultaneous disarmament" unless the move be accompanied by a world police force that could and would enforce peace. Otherwise there would be nothing to prevent a heavily populated country from overrunning a weaker country. When peace comes it will come through force and in no other way. Human nature is the same, whether dealings be between nations or individuals. In Boston two years ago when the police force struck, that staid city was thrown into a bedlam. Robbery, gambling and other forms of vice were flaunted openly on the streets and elsewhere. No one was safe until the militia took control. The peace of Boston was based on force and when the protecting agency ceased to function there was anarchy. It would be the same way throughout the world under the same conditions. There is no room for doubt upon that score.

We can join the League of Nations or some other combination, let the name be what it may, and enforce peace and disarmament by that process or we can go on preparing for defense on a scale never before necessary but which is now imperative if we are to stand aloof. We must choose one or the other of the two ways. It is up to President Harding to take the lead. If he cannot find wise counsel in his own party or from his own platform he can get it from the utterances of his distinguished predecessor—Woodrow Wilson—and from the democratic platform adopted at San Francisco last summer.

MISS PENDLETON'S NEGLECTED FACE

IN his talk yesterday Dr. McNary frankly told Miss Pendleton about some blemishes that may be easily remedied. He explained how to do it and he is right about the matter. The approaches to the city should be beautified and the work can be done almost without expense. The same is true of the unimproved parkings in the city. The average householder can take care of his parking and never notice either the expense or the trouble involved. But think what the general effect would be were these simple things attended to. The joy would not be so much for the visitor as for our own people. Pendleton is the child of the people who live here. We see her every day and are proud of her. Why not see to it that when people here or elsewhere speak of our child they comment not about her dirty neck or pimpled nose but of her beautiful looks and graceful ways.

FINANCIAL IMPROVEMENT

NOT only has the federal reserve system continued to develop increasing strength, additions of gold as compared with last year's holdings at the corresponding date showing an increase of $448,000,000, but there has been a steady liquidation of paper secured by long term obligations. Governor Harding of the federal reserve board, who has recently made a visit to the agricultural regions of the southern and western States, reports a better condition of farm financing. Reduction of acreage of cotton and gradual increase in demand for the staple promises higher prices and consequently greater ability to liquidate the obligations incurred by owners of cotton at banks. Recovery of wheat by about 20 per cent on the cash market above low figures shows that the agricultural situation with respect to this product is rapidly being stabilized and the effect has been to improve quite materially the position of those banks which have made advances with wheat as security. Nevertheless, it is true that there will continue to be large drafts upon bank resources as the season continues, the resources of financial centers being necessarily used to assist institutions in other part of the country which are in need of funds for raising and marketing the current crop.—From the Clews Financial Review.

The Baker Herald wants the police force there to be uniformed as one way of escaping the odium of being a "jay town."

The solution for the trouble over the milk ordinance should be simple; let the council write its own ordinance.

MISS NASON IS TO SPEAK BEFORE A. L. A.

Miss Sabra L. Nason, librarian of the Umatilla county library, will deliver an address on "The Relationship between the Central Station of a County Library and Its Branches."

June 24, at the forty-fourth annual conference of the American Library Association, to be held at Swampscott, Massachusetts, from June 20 to 27.

Umatilla county, the second in the state outside of Multnomah to establish a county system, now has the largest county library in the state outside of Multnomah. Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, points to the Umatilla county library as a fine example of the county system.

George Edward Woodberry, Dallas Lore Sharp, Robert Frost and Amy Lowell are a few of the prominent persons who will also address the conference. It is expected that 1500 members of the A. L. A. from all parts of this country and Canada will attend. The American Library Association is an organization of five thousand librarians, library trustees and others interested in libraries. Its purpose is to promote the use of books and to foster the development and extension of libraries, making them easily accessible to everybody.
