Who's That With Jap Prince?

That's Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan at the left, but who's that with him? That boyish smile of the British royal guard practically conceals the face of the Prince of Wales. He received the Japanese visitor at Portsmouth and escorted him to London.

Just Folks

HERE'S MY SUCCESS

Here's my success—the roses by the gateway.
The children running gladly up to me.
A simple street of friendship, not a great way.
A bird house and its tenants in a tree.

Here's my success—the kettle singing merrily.
The living room alive with songs and cheer.
A place to fill that needs my presence daily.
The children growing stronger year by year.

Here's my success—not fame or high position.
A little home where laughter oft is heard.
A happy table—there's a glorious mission—
A meal that's flavored with the merry word.

Here's my success—A glad wife at the doorway.
Rest and contentment when the day is done.
And though you find life's splendors bling your way.
Here loving lips tell me my battle's won.

SERVING THE CHILDREN OF PENDLETON

AS this newspaper sees it Pendleton has never had anything more genuinely helpful and wholesome than the playground work now being carried on here daily simultaneously in three different sections of the city. The expense involved is virtually nil because no equipment is required and the young woman in charge of the work is employed by the school board at an annual salary. But the benefits are real. Several hundred children have thus far participated regularly or during part of the time in the play that is provided. The opportunity is open without expense to all the children of the city or to children of the country or adjoining towns and who may be here. All who know children know what such a boon means to them—physically, mentally and morally. The children are developed bodily through wholesome play covering a period of several hours each day. They are taught sportsmanship and fair dealing. They have the benefits of association with other children under the eye of a trained supervisor. The playground work tends to keep children from playing in the streets where they are always more or less in danger and where such playing tends to wreck the nerves of the motorist. All in all the playground work is splendid business and when it can be had at such slight expense it would be a blunder not to keep it going as a regular feature.

WHY PENALIZE THE INTERIOR?

INTERIOR cities are obliged as a matter of self defense to oppose the move to abolish the long and short haul provision relating to railroad rates. Some of the roads would like to get back to the old basis of making lower terminal rates to coast points so as to kill off water competition. They should not be allowed to have their way. In the first place water competition is legitimate and should be fostered rather than destroyed. Furthermore to fight water competition by the old terminal rate scheme means to make the interior points pay the cost of an arrangement that penalizes themselves. We want none of that. We do not want to return to the practice of paying the through freight rate to Portland plus the back haul to Pendleton on shipments from the east. If the railroads are not making money let them revise their expenditures and improve their methods through electrification and thus get from one locomotive the power they now get from three. The plan to abandon the long and short haul clause is an effort to turn back the clock. It cannot be done.

WAR MOTHERS REPUDIATE HARVEY

AMBASSADOR HARVEY may have made a hit in certain quarters by his speech at Plymouth in which he placed a low estimate on American ideals in the war but he has aroused hot resentment on the part of many patriotic people. In the senate recently Senator McKellar read into the record the following protest from the War Mothers of America:

"Whereas the senate of the United States of America, on April 2, 1917, declared that we were in a state of war;

"Whereas we believed that it was through no fear of loss, no greed for gain, but for a great idea, for the saving of the nations and the freedom of the world, that we submitted to the sacrifice of our sons and countrymen;

"Therefore we, the Pennsylvania State Chapter of the National American War Mothers, assembled in convention in Philadelphia, declare we have read with the utmost abhorrence the words reported to have been spoken by George Harvey, ambassador to England. These words are an insult to everything the women of America hold dear.

"They defame every man and woman who made sacrifices during the war in the hope of hastening the coming of peace and all it implies.

"Our beloved sons—soldiers, sailors and marines—fought, suffered, and died believing they were crusaders in a great cause. The words of Mr. Harvey lead us to believe that they fought in vain.

"Our dear soldiers can not repudiate this insult; it remains for the mothers whose sons made the sacrifice to do so.

"Therefore we, the mothers of sons who were in the army and navy, ask the president of the United States to repudiate this insult to the country and to remove the stain which the words of Mr. Harvey have placed upon the honored dead of the World War, who died for the ideals of the United States of America."

It cannot be denied that the rank and file of the American people, in the army or at home, held the ideals expressed by these Pennsylvania women. Why a man like Harvey should try to place an unworthy motive upon the nation is hard to comprehend.

It is human nature for one to think the other fellow is making too much money and is gouging you, but did you ever stop to think that if you really believe he is in a profitable line of business you can go into that same business yourself if you wish. The door is usually open.

Just one little word often makes a wonderful difference as was learned by the Wisconsin man who thought the judge had sentenced him to 18 days in jail when as a matter of fact the judge said 18 years.

Mr. Edison may be very wise but the East Oregonian doubts if he knows where Hazel street is and would like to hear him express himself on the height of that haystack that belonged to James Sturgis.

Some think the Dempsey-Carpentier fight will be an immoral spectacle and there are others who fear the fight won't last long enough to suit them.

Kidnapped—For What?

Kidnapers made a mistake when they took Giuseppe Varotta, five, of New York, and asked for $2500. Salvatore Varotta, the boy's father is a truck driver and supports a family of six. He says he hasn't a dollar to give.
