Just Folks
by Edgar A. Guest

GRIEF'S ONLY MASTER

God wills that he must weep,
And in his darkest hour
Vain is all earthly power.

What, then, should guard the gate?
How shall a man be great?
Through the dark days add long,
What power shall make him strong?
Wherein does courage lie,
Since all he loves must die?

When sorrow blinds his hands,
Helpless the strong man stands,
One master only grief
Bows to, and that's belief—
Faith that he'll some day know
Why God hath willed it so:

"THE BOYS OF '61."

It is needless to say that the members of the G. A. R. and allied organizations now assembling here are welcome in Pendleton. We may not be demonstrative or effusive in extending greetings but the cordiality of the city towards these visitors is genuine. As a town Pendleton has never carried its patriotism on its sleeve but during the late big war this was the capital of a county that sent 2000 men to the service, that put over every liberty loan or other war drive in record time and kept its house in order by allowing no man, rich or poor, to escape his just obligations to the nation. Naturally an American community that thus faced its duty in time of trial feels honored indeed to be the host for the G. A. R. and such organizations as the Woman's Relief Corps, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and the Daughters of Veterans.

The civil war occurred so long ago that many no longer realize the full extent of the sacrifice made by the "Boys of '61" and the value of their services to the nation. But the united nation is a perpetual monument to their heroism and Lincoln's Gettysburg speech will always remain as an immortal tribute to those who fought and those who fell.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

"Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We are met to dedicate a portion of it as a final resting place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

"But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

The men gathering here for the Oregon G. A. R. encampment were a part of the country's fighting force that in the hour of need stepped forth and gave to the nation "the full measure of devotion." They are growing white now and often their shoulders are not erect as in the days of old. They may never meet in Pendleton again but the work they did will never die. While they are here the town is theirs.

Admiral Sims for making a speech that displeased the Irish has been called home by Secretary Denby, but Ambassador Harvey committed a worse breach than Sims by speaking disparagingly of American war aims. Why should he not be recalled?

The case of Roy Gardner proves once more that it is a mistake for an officer to deal leniently with a real criminal; they are too often ready to take advantage of an officer's kindness and at times the results are tragic.

In the war of the rebellion there were no gas attacks but neither was there such a thing as antiseptic surgery and the wounded suffered severely.

Strange to say the Chicago wheat market is often affected by farming conditions never heard of by the farmers.

Let's treat all the visitors nicely but keep an especial eye open for those young men with the white hair and the bronze badges with crossed cannon thereon.

The remedy for that bridge at Umatilla is to provide a new bridge; a structure that gets covered during high water should have no place on a transcontinental highway.

This country is alright but it will feel stronger when it gets the new crop under its belt.

A. F. OF L. MEETS IN DENVER WITH PROBLEMS

DENVER, June 12.—(U. P.)—The 41st annual convention of the American Federation of Labor got under way at 10 a. m. today in the Auditorium here. Between 1000 and 1200 delegates were in their seats when the meeting was called to order. All national officials of the federation are here.

This is the third time the convention has been held in Denver and 27 years ago, Samuel Gompers, present president, was defeated here for that office. John McBride was the choice over Gompers. Since then, the latter has been re-elected each year.

Preliminary work of the convention has been under way since June 8, when members of the Building Trades department met to outline problems to be placed before the convention proper. Between 200 and 250 delegates were present at these sessions.

Other branches of the federation which met for preliminary work are the metal trades department, the label trades department, the mining department and the International Labor Press association, composed of publishers of labor papers. Preliminaries were finished Saturday, June 11.

The British Trades Union congress is represented by two delegates; the Canadian Trades and Labor congress by one; Australia, one; Japan, one; Mexico, one.

Welcoming addresses were made today by Governors G. H. Shoup, Colorado; R. D. Carey, Wyoming and J. C. Bulger, president of the Colorado Federation of Labor, Mayor Dewey C. Bailey, Denver and Ed Keating, former congressman from Colorado.

The convention, according to local labor leaders will be one of the largest and most important ever held by the federation. Hundreds of resolutions are expected to be introduced.

CHINATOWN IS AMERICANIZED

BUTTE, Mont., June 12.—(A. P.)—Chinatown is rapidly becoming Americanized. Even the doctrine of women's rights has obtained recognition for only recently members of the Chinese colony paid a tribute to two women, Fannie L. Blow and Bessie E. Yew, by naming them as incorporators and directors of an oil corporation.

The oil company is entirely a Chinese concern and represents only one of the phases of American business that the Chinese are entering. Recently they organized a chamber of commerce in the colony with a reading room as one of its features.
