CHILD TRAINING AT HOME

"I don't want to get up. I'm going to stay abed this morning. I'm sick," came the grumpy call from the boy of the home.

Neither opposition nor argument was allowed by the wise mother. She ignored the remark and merely spoke over the banister to her husband below. "Did you say, Daddy, that those of the children who were ready on time could ride out to see the circus unload?"

Seethe's opposition nor argument was ignored the remark and merely spoke over the banister to her husband below. "Did you say, Daddy, that those of the children who were ready on time could ride out to see the circus unload?"

In another case—"I had to sell tickets," was the fretful reply to the mother's request.

"These are stamps, John, not tickets. Every one you sell gives food for a day to a starving little Chinese boy."

Visions of a black-queued laundry man who had given John a nut arose in the boy's mind. "So it's saving Chinks," was the boy's wording of his motive, and with zest he sold eight dollars' worth of the three-cent stamps.

The mother who can supply motives in place of argument finds a harmony in her home that generates peace, which in its turn is a strong factor in promoting good health. Constant friction reacts upon the physical condition of the members of the family.

Many pleasures and joys are due the children, yet it is only right that they should share in a simple way the burdens and responsibilities that go to make for comfort in the home. Where a mature mind can vision the needs and outcome of the work required, a child can see only the irksome task to be accomplished and often must be provided with a motive. At one time when a new garden plot was ploughed many stones were turned up. The father of the family left word in the morning for the children to toss out the stones after school that day. It was easy work for a while, but soon the interest flagged. Suddenly the oldest boy had a happy thought. "Let's get all the stones we can find and build a gate-post. Father will fix the cement and help us when he gets home." The garden plot was searched for every stone and a wonderfully fine piece of work was accomplished there before the father returned.

Many fine acts and homely accomplishments are recognized with honor for Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls which provide motives within their vision. However, the motive must be a right one, and not of the kind one mother offered in holding up a twenty five cent piece to calm her boy in his fit of temper. It was an easy way to earn money and the temper fits became frequent. That bit of silver might have accomplished more if offered to the child of that tendency for every week or month when no temper was allowed to show itself. In that way the child would have learned self-control of life-long value.

Neither rules nor laws can be fixed for the varied situations a mother faces, but if she can be equipped with a point of view from which to work, it will often meet a wide stretch of needs. To be able to offer a legitimate motive for action is one step towards happy home harmony.

P. P. Claxton, Federal Commissioner of Education, has held that during the year 1920, the American people spent more for luxuries than they have spent on education in the entire history of the country.

This nation, with its vast resources, can well afford to provide all of its children with every educational advantage, beginning with the kindergarten, and when we come to recognize in prevalent waves of crime, anarchy and unrest, the tragic results of neglecting the impressionable years of childhood, the kindergarten will be considered a necessity, not a luxury.

Full information and advice concerning the establishment of kindergartens may be secured from the National Kindergarten Association, 5 West 40th Street, New York City.

It provides for the institution of summer university courses for foreign students much along the same line as those maintained in France at Grenoble. For the present these will be installed at the University of Naples.
