MANY DELEGATES.

ressed in yesterday afternoon's meeting. Speakers decried the tendency to make the day a time for holding races, picnics and other athletic events.

Newport won the honor of entertaining the veterans next year. The other city that kept in the running was Oregon City, and on the final vote there were 29 favoring Oregon City and 40 who cast their votes for Newport.

Appreciation of the hospitality of the treatment accorded them during the encampment by Pendleton people was informally expressed by many of the veterans who declared that they had thoroughly enjoyed their visit to the Round-Up town.

ELOQUENT ADDRESS.

"I've known for a long time that many of our men were magnificent," he said, "but I have never known them before to admit it. They are not generate bars, though, and by far the great majority came from Christian homes."

Three-Fold Purpose.
Launching into the subject matter of his address, the speaker described the three purposes of the G. A. R. since its organization one year after the close of the war. To cultivate and promote fraternal relations between the survivors and their widows and relatives was the first ideal, he declared.

"With fraternal bodies, the ties are formed in the lodge room and consummated at the altar. With the G. A. R. these ties were formed on the march, in camp, on the reconnoiter and bound in the blood of battle."

"Our average is now more than 78 years, and before long we will have been laid to rest. 'Closed' will be written on the book, and those who have known us will know us no more."

Charity and loyalty are the two other cardinal ideals of the organization, the speaker said. Charity is expressed not only in love, he said, but in tolerance of the opinions, conduct and judgment of others. Loyalty, besides love of country, means devotion to the United States whose organic life is incorporated in its constitution. In closing his address, after reviewing the history of the turbulent period of the war, Judge Burton said:

"It is very improbable that we shall ever pitch our tents again with you in Pendleton, but in going, we leave to your safe keeping the grand republic of the United States of America."

Lieuallen Recalls Experiences.
In his address, Dr. Lieuallen dwelt altogether on his impressions and experiences as an officer with the A. E. F. The hellishness of modern warfare as shown in the destruction of artillery fire and the action of gas was described by the physician from his own observation and experience. He told of a submarine attack on ships of the convoy in which his unit crossed to France, and the heavy losses of his outfit on its baptism of fire were given.

Explaining why Americans during a part of the war refused to take prisoners, he told of a "sham" surrender that was staged by a party of 75 Germans. When a group of five Americans who were advancing to take charge of the party came up in front of them, the Germans cut loose with hand grenades and killed the Americans.

"From that time on, our outfit never took prisoners," Dr. Lieuallen said. "It was an impossibility. The only way a German ever got away with his life if our boys got them was on an order from the intelligence section to save one man as a source of information."

Fred Stelwer, formerly a lieutenant in the artillery, presided at the meeting. Two delightful solos were sung by Mrs. R. A. Caldwell, and Mrs. Loretta Williams gave two readings. Selections by the rifle and drum corps were enthusiastically received.

Father says—
"No slippers tonight!"

"I've worn these Werkshu since morning, and I have had a hard day, too. But my feet are as comfortable as I'd want them to be. Even if the Smiths dropped in I wouldn't change. I got the Werkshu habit from son, and he got it at that camp he liked so well last summer."

The Werkshu habit is also a saving habit. More people find it so every year. Hood Werkshus are famous for their durability and comfort. Heavy mail-bag duck uppers, grey-tire-tread soles, Hood patented pneumatic heels—you walk on air.

Facts

About your crankcase

Road dust, carbon, fine metal particles and other impurities accumulate in your crankcase oil from engine operation.

The gritty oil circulates through your engine, impairing its performance, and ultimately leads to rapid depreciation and repairs.

Automobile manufacturers recognize the danger and in their Instruction Books, carefully advise regular draining and flushing of the crankcase.

These important instructions are often disregarded; cleaning the crankcase is a job generally disliked.

To meet this need, Modern Crankcase Cleaning Service has been established by first-class garages and other dealers, co-operating with the Standard Oil Company. These garages and dealers use Calol Flushing Oil, the scientific agent that cleans out old oil, dirt, grit and other impurities, and does not impair the lubricating efficiency of fresh oil used.

The cleaned crankcase is refilled with the proper grade of Zerolene.

LONDON, June 16.—(A. P.)—Rear Admiral Sims left today for Southampton where he is to board the steamer Olympic. He rode in a special car so burdened with floral testimonials that there was scarce a room for members of his party to move about. The admiral waved his cap to a large group who despite the earliness of the departure gathered to give him a rousing send-off. Answering the reporters' request for a farewell message, the admiral called attention to the dispatches telling of the reaction in the United States against his critics. He had nothing further to say and "nothing to retract."
