CHEMISTS OPPOSE VOLSTEAD BAN ON USE OF ALCOHOL

House Rules Committee Hears Complaint That Stringent Law Will Destroy Industries.

BREWERS WANT RIGHT TO SELL BEER AS MEDICINE

Committee Has Agreed to Not Grant Author's Wish to Get Through Without Change.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(U. P.)—Prohibition workers split today on the question of amending the Volstead law, one camp insisting the amendments to the law be divided, with only those relating to beer passing immediately. Wayne Wheeler, general counsel for the anti-saloon league, opposes this.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(Herbert W. Walker, U. P. Staff Correspondent)—Representatives of the American Chemical Society have started war on the Volstead measure, charging in a communication to the house rules committee that the chemical industry "is threatened with destruction by the Volstead measure. Objections of the chemists were directed at those sections designed to hit the manufacture of medicinal preparations which can be used for liquor substitutes. The chemist's opposition is bolstering up the objection already voiced in the house.

As a result of the increasing opposition to some features of the bill, the rules committee virtually decided to refuse Volstead's request for the rule, jamming the measure through the house, without opportunity for amendment. Meanwhile numerous brewers are demanding the prohibition commissioner to allow them to sell beer as a medicine, under the Palmer rubric. The first section of the Volstead measure knocks out this ruling.

Peck, superintendent of motive power of the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company is in the hospital with his side paralyzed as the result of a shot fired at him while asleep at his home last night. His wife in a signed statement admitted the shooting, saying her husband's frequent absence from home and the serious illness of their son was the cause for her act.

PORTLAND, June 18.—(U. P.)—Clarence Peck was shot and seriously wounded as he lay in bed asleep by his wife, who, it is said, became angered at his having left her alone with their sick son for several nights recently. Mrs. Peck admitted the shooting. "For God's sake don't let him confess," she cried to the police as she was led to the city jail pending an investigation. The man was conscious when the police arrived and was rushed to the hospital where an operation was immediately resorted to.

Neighbors said Peck did not come home at all on Thursday night and arrived last night at 10 o'clock and went immediately to bed. His wife was apparently on the point of retiring when the shooting occurred. An old revolver belonging to Peck was the weapon used, and it was held so close that it burned the man's night shirt with the powder. The man's condition is serious, but he will live. He signed a statement admitting his guilt and his responsibility for the shooting and said he did not treat his wife right.

Mrs. Peck admits assault with a dangerous weapon. She is hysterical from worry over the sickness of her son, and the neglect of her husband. It is believed she thought him meeting other women during his frequent absences from home. While the man will live, the bullet's course along the spine, where the doctors discovered the lead, caused paralysis of one side. Neighbors told the police they had small sympathy for Peck and plenty for his woman. They had noticed Peck's treatment of his wife.

Some to Enter Normal Course to be Held Here; Remainder Scattered Over Country.

Stress on additional professional training for teachers of the city schools such as has never been observed before is made evident this year in the number of instructors who are taking special work in summer courses. The result of the provisions of the contracts entered into by the teachers and the board of education is expected to be reflected in a more finished corps of instructors than has ever been employed in the Pendleton schools.
