MAKING FRIENDS WITH THE BIRDS

By S. Louis Patterson, Lecturer and Author of How to Have Bird Neighbors.

One day last spring, a little girl asked me if it were true that robins liked to eat other things than worms. I replied that robins would eat fruit when they were thirsty if they could find no water.

"Oh, just when they're thirsty," she exclaimed in a tone of surprise. "Then I had better give them a basin of water, because father gets terribly provoked at the robins when he sees them in our cherry tree or in the strawberry patch."

I told her that in the strawberry patch robins were much more likely to hunt the grubs and cutworms that injure the roots of the vines than to eat the strawberries, but that they did like cherries. I asked her if she would like to make friends with the birds and fix a place in her garden where they could drink when they were thirsty or bathe and splash about in warm weather. She was delighted with the idea of making something useful and wanted to know how to build a bird bath. I gladly promised to help her make one and accordingly I went to her home one morning soon after our conversation. Together we gathered several baskets full of small stones from a vacant lot near her home, then selected a spot in an open space in her garden where we set up a pyramid about three feet high. After we had finished it we filled a big flower-pot saucer with water and placed it on top of the pyramid.

When the warm weather came, the birds used this bath so much that the water had to be changed several times a day! But the pleasure of watching the different birds that came to the garden to quench their thirst and splash about in the cool water, more than compensated for the slight trouble of filling the bath. The other members of the child's family became as much interested in their feathered friends as the little mason who had built the bath, and the practical father observed with satisfaction that his fruit trees were less attractive to the birds.

Some of the other children in the neighborhood had become anxious to befriend the birds and one of the best results of their new interest was that the small boys were less tempted to rob nests for the sake of collecting eggs, which were perfectly useless to them, and they became more interested to care for the mother birds in the nesting season and to protect their young, for all the children had become anxious to have as many bird neighbors as possible frequent their gardens.

One of the small boys was an only child whose hobby had been the collecting of minerals and quartz. He decided to make a practical use of his most treasured possession, four hexagonal blocks which had been brought to him from the Giant's Causeway. With his father's help he piled these heavy blocks of basalt one on top of another and made a perfect column about two and a half feet high. On top of it he kept a large brown flower-pot saucer filled with water; thus the use of what had been a souvenir of questionable worth helped to make a refreshing bath for the birds and added a real ornament to his mother's garden. And what is more important, his parents were pleased to observe that the child's odd desire to collect and possess mineral specimens was becoming secondary to an active sympathetic interest in the beautiful little living creatures that enjoyed coming to the garden; and deeper love and greater consideration for all dependent creatures became evident. Thus the tender, cherishing instinct was developed in several children through a little girl's interest in the fare of robins!

RENEWAL OF ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY IS DISCUSSED

LONDON, June 18.—(A. P.)—Austin Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, declared in the house with regard to the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty: "Although I do not in any way wish to prejudice action in the imperial conference, it is right to say at once that we shall be no party to any alliance directed against America, or under which we can be called upon to act against America."

RENO HAS DIVORCE REFORM.

RENO, June 18.—(U. N. S.)—Picking your favorite judge to hear the merits of your case has been a favorite indoor sport of the divorce colony here, it is said, following a conference of Judges Moran and Linsford and E. H. Beemer, the county clerk.

The conference was made necessary because of the alleged arbitrary selection by certain attorneys of the judges to hear their cases. The practice has grown to such large proportions that it has become distasteful to the Washoe county judges, and has led to a revision of the system used in assigning divorce cases after they were filed.

Up to the present time assignments to the two departments have automatically been made in cases were filed with even numbers going into one department and odd numbers into another. It is said that some attorneys have held back cases of their clients for several days in order that the next number on the register might be favorable and the case be set before the "favorite" judge. Attaches of the clerk's office have been kept busy answering telephone calls as to the next number on the register.

The conference of the judges and clerk resulted in a change of system which will make it impossible to foretell which judge will preside when a case is called. Hereafter all cases are filed will be assigned by drawing numbers from a box. Using this system it will not be possible to tell which department will have a case.
